Committee Will Consider Alabama Project Problem in Secret Session

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—A delegation of pacifists has asked Congress to approve a Constitutional amendment to make war "illegal," by prohibiting either the government or individuals from preparing for or carrying on armed combat.

A story is told of what is claimed to have been George Washington's only job in the Constitutional convention. Some one had moved a provision limiting the army of the United States to 10,000 men. Washington is said to have responded with an amendment forbidding any enemy to invade with more than 5,000. The proposal was dropped, immediately.

If war is ever made "illegal," it will have to be done internationally by some power able to proceed against both sides. Just now, the chief obstacle to doing that is the isolationist policy of Russia and America.

VARIOUS resolutions are introduced in Congress asking Secretary Kellogg for information regarding the government's policies in Mexico and Nicaragua, and speeches, mostly radiating more heat than light, are made in criticism of that policy. To all of which the Secretary replies, once by a secret statement before a Senate committee, and unusually by talks with the newspaper men, whose interpretation thereof he commonly repudiates as soon as printed.

The net result is that both Congress and the people are left in hopeless confusion. The policy of the government may be intelligent, but it certainly is not intelligible.

SUCH a situation certainly calls for a remedy. And if the remedy requires no originality nor powers of discovery; if it is already in familiar and successful use all over the world—so much the less excuse for our failure to use it.

The remedy is, of course, "interpellation." Under that system, which is quite the most universal feature of representative government in every other free country in the world, Secretary Kellogg would be asked these questions, not indirectly, and at long distance, but face-to-face, on the floor of Congress. And if any member of Congress made a reckless speech, accusing him of policies which had no resemblance to the actual ones, he would rise, then and there, and reply to the speech on the spot. Then the rest of us could know what it is all about.

THE present situation at Sacramento—which is the usual one—also illustrates the need of some more responsible and public relation between the executive and legislative departments.

The press dispatches all refer to certain legislative measures as the "Young bills," or the "Governor's policies." And these are precisely the most important measures before the legislature; the ones on which the whole session will turn. Yet with the single exception of the budget, the Governor has not himself introduced one of those bills. Most of them; also, were not written either by him or by the ostensible introducer. They were drafted in the administrative department immediately concerned. Neither the Governor nor the actual author is permitted to introduce the bills, nor to defend them in the body which must pass them. The whole proceeding is indirect, secret and irresponsible. The Governor, to be sure, usually gets his bills passed. But he does so by quite other processes than those of public argument.

IF THE answer is that the Governor, not being a member of the legislature, and being chosen to make the laws, but to administer them, has therefore no business introducing bills, the reply is that in fact all governors and all presidents do so, and that the people expect it of them. The old theory of the "separation of powers" may survive in some out-of-date books, but it corresponds nowhere to the facts. The Governor is expected to be the legislative leader; to propose the principal measures; and to be active in promoting their passage, and every Governor who retains the public's confidence always does this. Regardless of what once were book theories, this is the existing system.

ALL that is lacking to this system is the tools to make it work. The Governor lacks the tools to work effectively; and the legislature and the people lack the tools to hold him responsible. These tools, too, do not have to be invented. They are in familiar and successful operation, all over the world. Now they will work does not have to be guessed. It has already been tried out, in practical experience. All we need is the enterprise to profit by that experience.

Offer Billion For Ford Motor Plant

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—An offer of one billion dollars for the Ford plant was made within the last 30 days by Hornblower and Weeks, New York, according to John W. Prentiss, of the concern, testifying today in the $35,000,000 Couzens tax appeal case here. Prentiss revealed his company had sought four times since 1916 to acquire the mammoth automobile works. In 1916, Ford was offered $500,000,000. In 1924, 1925 and 1927, the offer was increased to $1,000,000,000, but each time was rejected.

NAB FISHERMAN AS STRANGLING CASE SUSPECT

Greek Puts Up Terrific Fight When Arrested In Los Angeles

(By United Press)

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 2.—Steve Kelmas, 51, a marine fisherman, was being held in the city jail, here today, to await possible identification as the "dark stranger," sought in the middle west and on the Pacific coast as the murderer of a score of women.

According to Detective Lynch, Kelmas was taken into custody in the Mexican quarter of the city, late last night, after a struggle. He is said to answer the general description of the stranger and efforts will be made to have him identified today.

Kelmas denied all knowledge of the murders and said that he came here from Santa Barbara to attend an automotive school.

Kelmas was arrested by a raiding squad, following a report to police that the much-sought "dark stranger" was in hiding in a room above a pool hall in the north end of the city.

INDIAN MAIDEN IS STRANGLER TO DEATH

TOLEDO, Ore., Feb. 2.—Possibility that Alexander Hill, 35, is the "dark stranger," who murdered 12 women on the Pacific coast, was being considered here today, following the crazed man's act in strangling to death Minnie Washington, 17, an Indian girl, here yesterday.

Hill, a Scandinavian logger, is said to have murdered the girl because she refused to believe that he was the incarnation of Jesus Christ.

Ernest Copeland found the girl's body in an abandoned house near here, after Hill had told him that he had "sent her on" because she refused to follow him. He humored the insane man and, as a result, obtained information as to the whereabouts of the body and got word to the sheriff's office.

COMMITTEE KILLS BILL FOR MEDICINAL WHISKEY CONTROL

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—The Green bill, embodying the plan of Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Andrews for creation of a private corporation to control the manufacture and distribution of medicinal whiskey, was killed today by the house ways and means committee, 16 to 8.

The committee agreed to have Chairman Green, Iowa, appoint a special subcommittee of seven members to draft a new bill.

General Andrews said he would not comment on the committee's action until he is formally notified, but he indicated deep regret at the prospect of no legislation this year to control medicinal liquor. Some of his friends have said Andrews would not continue in office if this bill were killed.

The bill provided for a quasi-governmental private corporation, capitalized at some $35,000,000, partly advanced by the government and partly obtained through sale of stock and bonds, which would manufacture and sell all medicinal liquor.

USE CABLES TO RESCUE WOMAN IN SHIPWRECK

Cast on Shore by Waves, Survivor Is Trapped By High Cliffs

SAN PEDRO, Feb. 2.—A coast guard cutter was dispatched from here late today to aid in the rescue of Mrs. Ray Brecher, marooned on the rocks at Point Dume, following the sinking of the yacht "Enterprise," in a heavy fog, late last night.

(By United Press)

SANTA MONICA, Feb. 2.—While a shipwrecked woman clung to a crag on the rockbound coast of Point Dume, 25 miles north of here, a rescue party, with heavy cables, prepared to drag her up over the precipitous cliffs to safety, late today.

The woman, exposed for 15 hours to high winds, waves and fog, was the third member of a party which last night, met disaster when the 65-foot yacht, "Enterprise" foundered and was dashed to pieces against the rocks, in a heavy sea stirred by a high wind, which swept landward with the fog.

According to police here, first word of the disaster was received from one of two men, members of the party, who called the Santa Monica police station and asked for help.

Finding it impossible, owing to the heavy breakers, to approach the marooned woman by sea, the rescue party centered its attention on bringing her to safety over the high cliffs. Considerable delay was experienced when it was found necessary to send back to this city for expert cables.

The identity of the woman is unknown. Her two companions, police say, reached safety, although their whereabouts are uncertain.

The party sailed on the yacht "Enterprise" from Catalina island early last night.

BONES OF MURDER VICTIMS DUG FROM WHITTIER CELLAR

(By United Press)

WHITTIER, Feb. 2.—The bones of a Pittsburgh woman and her three adopted children were being assembled here today, revealing a tragedy of 10 years ago and adding four more victims to the list of George Hassel, "wholesale murderer," now awaiting execution in Texas.

WHOLESALE KILLER

All evidence was being carefully taken from the tomb, preparatory to an inquest which will be held over the bones.

Aided by a map and directions furnished by the murderer himself, and forwarded to police here, searchers began their work early Monday, and late yesterday came upon the first evidence of the gruesome crime, five feet beneath the surface of the cellar floor.

The manner in which Hassel murdered his Whittier victims was apparent with the finding of the skeletons. The bodies were all piled in one pit. The skull of each victim had been crushed and about the neck of each was a rope.

Police, following the diagram submitted by Hassel, found all details of his confession to Texas authorities true.

Circumstances surrounding the mysterious actions of Hassel at the time of the murder were recited today by Mrs. Clara Shanker.

According to Mrs. Shanker, Hassel visited her one morning and told her his wife and children had been summoned to San Francisco, by a telephone call from her sister. Later he informed her that his wife had eloped with another man.

Suspicion over the disappearance of the family was diverted from Hassel when police inspected a freshly-made hole in the garage floor, which failed to reveal anything.

CANTONESE LEADER HURLS CHARGES OF IMPERIALISM AT ENGLISH GOVERNMENT

Chen Insists War Plans at Shanghai Stop If London Expects Peace Agreement to Be Signed

REPORT NEGOTIATIONS AT END

HANKOW, Feb. 2.—Foreigners in this area feared today that trouble would result from Foreign Minister Eugene Chen's decision that the Nationalists should not sign a settlement of the concessions question with Great Britain until British troops and gunboats were withdrawn from Shanghai.

(By United Press)

LONDON, Feb. 2.—Charging that Great Britain was governed by Tory statesmanship, representative of imperialism, war and Byzantine glory, Foreign Minister Eugene Chen, spokesman for Nationalist China, has demanded that Great Britain cease military and naval concentrations on Shanghai, else the Nationalists would not sign any agreements regarding settlement of the current dispute in China.

Chen's statement was contained in a telegram received and made public today by the Independent Labor party here. Chen suggested that the disruption of British trade in China might have to continue until the present Conservative government of Britain was succeeded by a Socialist government.

Negotiations between Great Britain and the Cantonese Nationalists at Hankow have not been broken off, the United Press was authoritatively informed today.

The report that negotiations had been ended, the United Press was informed, was false. The spokesman for Britain said the negotiations between Owen O'Malley, of the British legation staff at Peking, and Eugene Chen, Cantonese foreign minister, merely had taken a new direction.

NEGOTIATIONS ARE REPORTED BROKEN

PEKING, Feb. 2.—After virtually agreeing on all points, negotiations between Eugene Chen, Cantonese foreign minister, and British Charge d'Affairs O'Malley, at Hankow, have been halted, the British legation here today told the United Press that it had been given to understand.

The legation understood the negotiations for settlement of the international dispute were ruptured yesterday, after "a slight check," which occurred when Chen and O'Malley seemed in agreement.

Signature to an agreement had been expected here, since the Chinese and British attitudes closely coincided on all points, the legation was informed.

Details of the negotiations between Chen and O'Malley had not been received in official quarters here today. Private sources reported the rupture to be due to the unwillingness of the representative of the Nationalist government to continue while British troops remained concentrated at Shanghai, with others on the way there.

MOTHER REPUDIATES YOUNG'S CONTRACTS

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 2.—All contracts entered into by George Young, youthful Catalina channel swimmer, have been repudiated by his mother, Mrs. Jean Young. It was announced here today by W. H. Sheldon, attorney for Mrs. Young.

"Young's contract with Henry O'Byrne is not valid so far as I can see and Mrs. Young still considers herself the guardian of her son and repudiates that, as well as all other contracts," Sheldon said.

Wires will be dispatched to San Francisco immediately to George, to O'Byrne and to the theater where Young is to appear notifying them that any contracts they have are invalid. The theater will be advised not to pay any money to Young or any of his so-called managers, Sheldon said.

RADIO BILL DELAYED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—Consideration of the conference reports on the radio bill was postponed today by the senate, on objection of Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, who asked further time to examine the bill provisions.

MAN FACES GALLOWS DEATH FOR SLAYING STEPDAUGHTER

(By United Press)

BAKERSFIELD, Feb. 2.—Odd Cornell, 51, will tread the 13 steps to the gallows, if the verdict of the jury of 10 men and two women that he is guilty of murdering Fairy Gerase, 14, his stepdaughter, is carried out.

Cornell was convicted late yesterday of first-degree murder and the jury failed to recommend life imprisonment, after two hours and 20 minutes of deliberation.

The man also is accused of killing his wife, Fairy Cornell, at the same time he ended the life of Fairy Gerase. He probably will never go to trial on this charge, county officials indicated today.

The crime occurred October 17, shortly after Cornell escaped from jail.

U. S. MARINES READY TO SAIL FOR SHANGHAI

Tons of Munitions Under Heavy Guard at Dock In San Diego

(By United Press)

SAN DIEGO, Feb. 2.—When the transport Chaumont, expected in San Diego tonight, docks, 1200 marines and tons of munitions will be ready for instant embarkation to Shanghai.

The munitions, including box after box of cartridges, already are on the dock, covered with huge tarpaulins and guarded by armed marines. To speed the work, the marines have taken possession of a suite of offices in the municipal pier building.

Col. Charles Hill, commander of the fourth regiment, likely will continue as head of the departing troops, leaving Brig. Gen. Smedley Butler, commander of the marine base, still at the base, with barely 100 men under him.

SAYER PUT UNDER WATCH OF DEATH

FOLSOM PRISON, Feb. 2.—The shadow of the gallows today crept closer to the cell of Edward K. Sayer, Denver youth, condemned to die Friday for murdering a Japanese woman.

Sayer was put under the "death watch" this morning, which means that his every movement until he begins the march from his cell to the execution room will be closely observed by a prison guard. A strong electric light will illuminate his cell, day and night, lest he make any attempt to end his own life.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Sayer, Denver, parents of the condemned youth, Mrs. Grace Sayer, his wife, and their 3-year-old daughter, Barbara, have taken up their residence in a small hotel near the prison gate.

Here they are given frequent opportunities to visit Sayer in his cell.

CANTONESE PUT SOVIET RUSSIA IN TIGHT PLACE

TIENSIN, Feb. 2.—Soviet Russia, financial backer of the Cantonese politico-military faction, has suddenly been placed in an extremely awkward position by the very people whose cause she has been promoting. The Cantonese, having moved the seat of their hitherto unrecognized government to Wuchang in the Yangtze valley and having begun an earnest campaign to secure the recognition of the powers, have suddenly turned around to their Russian friends with a seemingly innocent, albeit pertinent question: "Why don't you recognize our Wuchang government and withdraw recognition from Peking?" they ask.

The query has Russia guessing for the first time since she began her destructive work in China, for she is certain to be damned if she recognizes Canton and she is certain to be damned if she doesn't.

Between Two Fires

If Soviet Russia withdraws recognition from Peking and accords

it to the so-called Nationalist regime in Wuchang, Peking is almost certain to regard it as a hostile act. This might mean the incarceration of every Russian Red living north of the Yangtze in detention camps, the closing of Soviet consulates, the ejection of Soviet consular officers and the seizure of Soviet Russian property in North China, and the least important of which is the Russian half of the Chinese Eastern railway, sole control of which Moscow has been maneuvering for since China recognized the Soviet government.

This would mean that Russia would seek revenge on North China by pouring more troops and gold into the so-called Nationalist organization for the purpose of bringing about a decisive defeat of the north in the struggle between Canton and Peking that now impends. But the cost would be more than she can afford to invest.

May Become Suspicious

If Soviet Russia seeks to postpone the issue and withhold recognition from the Canton or Wuchang regime, the Cantonese are almost certain to suspect the Soviet's intentions with regard to them, something they have not been anxious to inquire into too deeply as long as Russia continued financing their war for supreme control of China.

The opinion in North China, particularly among the foreign diplomats is that the Cantonese will not catch their Bolshevik friends napping, for the Russian Reds are generally credited with an almost uncanny resourcefulness in squirming out of hot corners.

Russia will argue her way out of an immediate answer by simply stating that if she recognized the Canton government and withdrew recognition from Peking first, the other powers would see her hand in the so-called Chinese Nationalist program and would maintain an aloof attitude from Canton and keep the status quo in Peking, which would prolong the Cantonese campaign for world-wide recognition.

Would Close Shelters

Furthermore, Russia may be expected to say that should Peking and Moscow sever diplomatic relations, the closing of Russian consulates in North China would close the shelters now open to those Sino-Russian propaganda agents who are engaged in trying to undermine the morale of the northern military forces by offering bribes to northern generals to desert their leaders and go over to the south.

Daughter of King Of Swat and Grid Hero Will Marry

The engagement of Andrew J. "Bill" Cook, prominent U. S. C. football player, and Miss Catherine Cravath, assistant registrar in the Anaheim union high school, was announced today. The marriage is scheduled to take place early in the summer.

Cook is the son of John Cook, Anaheim citrus grower. He is a senior at U. S. C. and is a member of the freshman football and track coaching staffs.

Miss Cravath is the daughter of C. C. "Gavy" Cravath, former home run king of the National league and at present justice of the peace in Laguna Beach and a cousin of "Jeff" Cravath, captain of the 1926 U. S. C. football team.

The engagement culminates a romance which started when both were students in the Anaheim school.

Girl, Educated in U. S., And Rebel Mate Flee Constabulary

MANILA, P. I., Feb. 2.—From college campus to the jungles of Jolo is a record transition, but Princess Tarhata, niece of the Sultan, has made it and is giving aid and comfort to her defeated rebel husband, Datu Tahil, according to reports of constabulary scouts.

The constabulary today was spreading a net through the teak and sandalwood forests of Sulu to capture Tahil and take the princess, his fourth wife, back to the luxuries of a Mohammedan court.

It was revealed today that the little band of rebels, who held out for days against rifle and mortar fire, was armed only with spears and knives. Tahil, guided, it is believed, by his flapper princess, escaped from the shell-torn native stronghold and effort to trace him and his band have been fruitless.

Meanwhile Tarhata, former co-ed at the University of Illinois and devotee of the tea dansant, must live on wild fruit and such game as can be killed with primitive weapons.

ARIZONA MAN SEES DELAY IN MEASURE

PHOENIX, Ariz., Feb. 2 — Any fears felt by opponents to the Swing-Johnson Boulder dam bill that it will be presented to congress this session are over, Fred T. Colter, member of the Arizona legislature, declared here today.

Colter, a member of the state senate, returned today from Washington, where he acted on a committee from Arizona opposing passage of the bill.

Colter declared that the only thing that will "bring the bill back to life" is the possibility of a tri-state compact between California, Arizona and Nevada.

"It is the opinion of western representatives in congress," said Colter, "that three states are taking too much liberty in saying what seven states shall do and that in their opinion an original compact should never have been entered into."

Blushing Traffic Officers Refused To Write Ticket

Frank G. Snook, prominent citizen of Sacramento, probably came closer to being arrested last night than at any time before in his life.

Snook was driving with a red light burning on his machine, the light attracting the attention of State Officers Aldrich and Stinson.

The officers "kicked over" their motors and the race was on. The Snook machine soon was caught and Snook was given an opportunity of hearing how a siren sounds when an officer is in pursuit. The Snook car stopped and Aldrich stepped up with book and pencil in hand.

But as quickly as the book appeared it was pocketed and a confused officer stood facing his chief, for Snook is the new head of the state vehicle department. Although Aldrich knew Snook was in the Southland, he did not expect to see the chief on the road last night.

With Snook was Chief Inspector C. K. Harder. The two were in Santa Ana at noon yesterday and visited the traffic office here, but all officers were away on duty at the time. They then went to San Diego and returned to Los Angeles last night.

A WORD OF COMFORT
Do not drift without chart or compass; such conduct courts certain disaster. The storm has battered you and the waves of grief have beaten you hard, but you are weathering the fury of the sea.
Set your course to sail as straight as possible to the haven where you would be, and never lose heart. Keep your vision clear of what you seek and you will have courage to go on.

Dr. Charles D. Ball and his Orange County Medical History, 200-page volume dealing with the pioneers of the medical profession in Orange county. The book represents years of research work on the part of Dr. Ball.

MATERIALS FOR DRESSES TO BE LIGHT, FILMY

PARIS, Feb. 2.—It seems that exceptionally light clothes will be worn this year. The day of heavy cloth and silk that stands alone is over. The new woolen materials and materials made of a mixture of silk and wool are so light that tailor-made coats and skirts and two-piece ensembles of dress and long coat may be worn without inconvenience in hot weather.

The foundation materials will be made in all the well-known pastel shades of pink, blue, yellow, green, ivory white and biscuit beige. Some of the materials are plain, others machine-pleated, and patterns are often woven and worked into the surface. Small flower patterns, such as dainty little flower heads worked in color, in gold and silver thread, are strewn on plain materials like flowers on grass, and among them may be traced Chinese figures outlined in silver or gold. Again, there are checks of every dimension from the finest and smallest.

Machine-pleated materials are made, some with narrow pleats regularly set and held on the wrong side of the material with tapes, others with very finely pleated narrow panels to alternate with plain panels. All this machine work is done most beautifully, whether in pleatings, in embroidery or in printed designs.

Need For Decoration
The manufacturers have reduced the need for hand decoration, though leaders of fashion still use hand-made embroideries and tuckings as well as machine-prepared materials.

Pale rose colors and banana yellow, white in every shade, and biscuit beige are among the colors which will be worn. Worked with metal embroideries woolen materials gleam and glitter a little more gently than the present sequined, covered silk evening dresses. Worked over with little flowers in pale or bright colors they are more subtle.

There also are materials which look like tussore, but are mainly made of wool, and there is a mixture of wool and artificial silk, the lightest of all materials, and something like alpaca. There are also light crepes and neat tweed mixtures in gray and beige, which are good for spring, and there are lighter, brighter kinds for summer.

Jerseys Are Used
Jerseys and sacking cloths are used together to make country suits. The jerseys look exactly like hand-knit work and the sackings agree with them in color if not in pattern when put together.

A skirt of sacking goes with a pullover of jersey. Stripes or different widths and in all colors are worked on plain grounds. In beige and brown there are many desirable mixtures.

Printed materials are especially made for scarfs and shawls. There are shawls with borders of bright flowers like those in fashion during the reign of Louis Philippe. There are others which are copied from Bayeux tapestries, from Eastern documents and from the French fifteenth century materials.

So rich and decorative are these shawls and scarfs that they are used for house decoration as well as for dress. There are also materials and covers designed for the house which may be used for dress.

Motor-car rugs of colors and patterns are made to go with the upholstery of the car. Dress manufacturers now work in union with house decorators as well as dress makers. They are influenced by all the new movements in art.

Merman L. Beavers, 26 of Huntington Beach, and Florence R. Wechsler, 25, of Long Beach, have been granted a marriage license in Riverside.

Pioneers of Profession Are Given Much Space in New Volume

A veritable storehouse of interesting information on "pioneer days" has been added to the historical records of Orange county with the publication of the Orange County Medical History, by Dr. Charles Dexter Ball, well known Santa Ana physician and president of the Orange County Historical society. The volume, just off the press, is handsomely bound in flexible leather cover, profusely illustrated and in itself a testimonial to the printer's art.

With its 205 pages of reading matter, the volume represents years of painstaking research work. In an effort to cover the field, the author has collected his information from family Bibles, genealogies, tombstones, state and county records, old newspaper files and personal interviews with the earliest settlers.

Tells of Early Doctors
The first part of the book is devoted to "Pioneer Medicine of Orange County," from the coming of Father Junipero Serra until the vigilantes cleaned up the state in the fifties. As with other pioneers, Dr. Ball remarks, so with the medical men—many of them were adventurers; only a few were gold seekers; a small number came for their health, and now and then there was a man with a past. These "pioneer doctors" came one by one—some by the covered wagon route, some by the isthmus and some around the horn.

Another chapter is devoted to a description of San Juan Hot Springs, known to the early settlers as "San Juan Rio del Agua Caliente."
These parts are followed by a series of biographical sketches of "pioneer medical men" well over a hundred. Among the first of his profession to settle in these parts was Dr. John August F. Heyermann, who made his home in Anaheim. He was a typical adventurer. Forty-nine found him a druggist in San Francisco, but not for long. In 1850, he went to Mexico, where he remained for several years. On his way back to California, his wagon train was attacked and looted by a roving band of Apaches. He finally reached the little colony of Anaheim, where he opened a drug store. There he remained for 11 years, when his restless spirit drove him back to San Francisco.

First Woman Physician
Dr. Lucy B. Clyde Moesser was the first woman physician to reach Orange county, at that time a part of Los Angeles county. She was born in the state of New York, Jan. 2, 1837. Her husband was a historical character, who had had many interesting experiences. An outstanding figure among the "old timers" was Dr. Schlesinger, who, together with George P. Hinde and Ira Carpenter, founded the mysterious "Societas Fraternitatis," a sort of spiritual brotherhood. A remarkable feature of this association was the strange view held by its members as to what should constitute a man's diet. Meats, eggs, milk, butter, cheese, bread, in fact anything which could not be classed as fruit or vegetable, were on the "verboten" list.

Many sidelights on the organization and development of the Orange county health department and allied agencies, including the various hospitals and nursing services, are contained in detailed descriptions. Particular reference is made to the Orange County Tuberculosis association, the Santa Ana Valley hospital, Santa Ana Training School for Nurses and the Santa Ana Clinical society.

The last part of the book is devoted to the Orange County Medical association, 1889-1926, inclusive. It covers a brief sketch of the society, its accessories, health departments and its accomplishments. In the biographies only those are included who are, or have been at some time, members of the organization.

Horse Runners Succeeded By Plane Thieves

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 2.—Round-up of the thieves of aerial steeds may be the part of members of the Anti-Horse Thief association, if history repeats itself again.

There was a time in the horse-stealing days of the southwest when the association had its hands full in running down those who rustled their neighbors' horses. In fact, that situation and a flocking of criminals to the state resulted in organization of the society, in 1854, in Missouri.

Methods of protection devised in the western mining camps were incorporated in the new organization by two of its founders, Maj. David McKee and Hugh Allen Stewart, who were 49ers in California. For years after the Civil war, when Kansas thieves flourished, the A. H. T. A. made it hot for the rustler.

One of the most famous of horse runners whom the society and the federal government sought to curb was "Tom King." In the three years that he operated in the old Indian territory, he probably stole more horses than any man ever got away with in a similar period. He was a puzzle to his pursuers and escaped every trap that was laid for him.

The society often protected banks and gradually drifted into a general law enforcement organization, spreading through the southwest and extending east into Illinois, Iowa and Ohio. In 1908, the Kansas branch of the association asked the legislature to pass more stringent laws regulating the speed of motor cars.

Having taken cognizance of the gasoline steed, the A. H. T. A. busied itself in running down motor car thieves, though not losing sight of its original purpose when a horse theft was reported.

PLANNING BODY TO TAKE FINAL ZONING ACTION

The planning commission, at its meeting, tomorrow afternoon, will give final consideration to plans for zoning the city and will submit its recommendations to the city council probably Monday night, according to Clara Cushman, secretary of the body.

Motions passed at a recent joint meeting of the commission and North Main street residents cleared up a point that has been responsible for some delay by the commission in presentation of final recommendations.

The point involved was as to whether the street should be zoned its full length for business or to Washington avenue or Santa Clara avenue.

Sentiment at the joint meeting was favorable to opening the street to the north city limits and future widening was provided for by a motion expressing sentiment of the owners in favor of a 10-foot setback line on each side of the street from Sixth or Seventh street north to the city limits. No time was designated as to when the street should be widened. The setback line being established for the purpose of guiding future construction and to prevent erection of structures that would have to be moved to make widening possible later.

The property owners also recommended that North Main street to the city limits be included in fire district No. 1, provided it could be done without restricting residence building to fire-proof construction, as required within the present limits of the district.

Thesult brought by Knute Norwington, Fullerton rancher, against W. D. Mitchell and the Markwell Building company, to rescind an agreement for the exchange of ranch property for the Jergens Trust building, formerly the Markwell building, in Long Beach, still was under way today before Superior Judge E. J. Marks, after several days' trial. In addition to cancellation of the agreement, Norwington demands judgment for $50,000 which he claimed to have loaned Mitchell in connection with the deal.

William Van Loren, who resides in Buena Park, reported to the sheriff's office yesterday the theft of a washing machine from his front yard. Deputy Sheriff Ed McClellan has been assigned to the case.

The case of George White, Los Angeles, charged with reckless driving in connection with his alleged attempt to wreck an officer's machine, near El Toro, on December 3, when Deputy Sheriffs Dan Adams and Clyde Flower arrested him for possession of liquor, was continued in Justice Kenneth Morrison's court yesterday until next Tuesday.

White is seriously ill in a Los Angeles hospital, according to information received here by Morrison, the justice said.

White was fined $500 on a possession of liquor charge at the time of his arrest. A total of 750 gallons of alcohol were found on his truck.

Henry F. Sullivan, first American to swim the treacherous Catalina channel and the first person of any nationality to conquer both the Catalina and the English channel straits, will appear in person at the Yost Broadway theater here tonight and tomorrow, Manager E. D. Yost announced today.

The 34-year-old Lowell, Mass., natator, dean of all long distance swimmers, completed the Catalina channel swim yesterday morning, negotiating the 30 miles in 22 hours and 45 minutes or 7 hours and 46 minutes slower than George Young, Canadian winner of the Wrigley marathon.

Sullivan was an entrant in the Wrigley contest but was forced to give up after being in the water more than 10 hours.

It is understood that Sullivan comes to Santa Ana in his vaudeville act prior to an engagement on the Orpheum circuit. His "turn," it is said, consists of a lecture on his swim of the English channel, which he made August 5 and 6, 1923, and a motion picture showing his fight to beat the currents between England and France.

Sullivan next hopes to swim the Irish channel, a 65-mile stretch from the English coast.

AS IN DAYS OF YORE

It seems both fitting and proper that "the best girl in the world" should express her preference much as "he" does—with a ring—such was the custom in the days of the Knights and their Ladies.

Today it is once again the proper thing to do and as usual we have just what will serve best. Beautiful mannish style mountings set preferably with rubies but with any other stone you might prefer—It's a birth stone for example.

The ring we have in mind is a splendid example of what we mean. Splendid in appearance, made in 14 Karat Green Gold and set with a beautiful synthetic ruby. The price—just think of it—is only $30.

State Executive Board Selects Ticket for State Officers

The executive board of the California Federation of Women's Clubs, with Dr. Mariana Bertola presiding, held its sixth session for this club year at the Hotel Oakland, Oakland, Saturday, January 28. Besides many of the state chairmen, the Alameda county president and state officials, the board was honored by the presence of all of the six district presidents.

The solution of a problem that has been agitating the club women for some time, was disposed of in very quick and agreeable manner. The nominating committee composed of Mrs. Robert Fisher, chairman, Mrs. Elton L. Warner of Alameda district, Mrs. John C. Urquhart of Los Angeles, Mrs. Cora N. Woodbridge of the northern district, Mrs. J. E. Butterfield, San Francisco, Mrs. W. D. James, San Joaquin and Mrs. A. W. Wohlford of the southern district, reported in the afternoon that the candidates had been selected for the election in May. For president, Mrs. W. W. Green of the northern district; vice-president, Mrs. George Turner of the San Joaquin district; vice president-at-large, Mrs. J. B. Lorbeer of Los Angeles district; treasurer, Mrs. S. S. Ripley, Alameda district; auditors, Mrs. E. J. Wales of San Francisco and Mrs. George W. Wing of the southern district.

A resolution accompanying the nomination, was from the minutes of a specially called meeting of the executive board of Los Angeles district, held Thursday, January 27. "Moved by Mrs. Charles McKelvey that instruction be given Mrs. John C. Urquhart, our member of the nominating committee, that she state to the state nominating committee that Los Angeles district feels deeply that the presidency should come to the south and that the northern district should wait two years and the Los Angeles district would support their candidate.

"Los Angeles district feels that Mrs. J. B. Lorbeer's name should go on the ballot uncontested. If the nominating committee will not accede to this, then the interests of harmony in the Federation Los Angeles district will present Mrs. Lorbeer's name for vice-president-at-large, provided that it goes on the ballot uncontested but Los Angeles district gives warning that two years from now it will be in the field for the presidency."

The northern district has had but one state president prior to Dr. Bertola, and unfortunately she lived but a very short time after being elected to office.

Dr. Mariana Bertola gave an excellent report of her attendance at the convention of the General Federation held in Washington, D. C. the first part of the month. Reverence to the flag was especially stressed, united consolidation against communist propaganda of foreign origin was strongly advocated, careful survey of the water supply of the United States and better sanitation were some of the measures adopted. California has 331 clubs with a membership of over 45,000 in the general federation. Dr. Bertola reported the delegates were royally entertained by the people of Washington.

Mrs. John Urquhart, past state president, gave a short talk on law enforcement and Mrs. Claude Leech reported that the voters' council was receiving recognition in this state and was also being adopted in other states.

Six clubs joined the state federation during January, Centinella Woman's club of Barnes, Eleanor Joy Tell association of Los Angeles, Woman's club of Davidson, Los Angeles district; Roseville Woman's Christian Temperance Union, northern district, and the Outdoor club of Berkeley, Alameda district.

Time was when you could call any bookkeeper by his front name and he'd wag and come. That was the day before the income tax reports. Now, beware of the bookkeeper! That sort of a sign should be hung up wherever these efficiency experts hold forth. It's no beer and skittles any more for them. It takes stamina of heart, mind, body and soul to harness up figures so they will not strip the treasury department differential.

Bookkeeping is an exact science. Chess players, workers of charades, enigmas, etc., are best fitted for this work. Patience to the point of percentage: concentration past the point of interest: every other qualification multiplied and every interruption subtracted (if you know what we mean).

District Attorney Is Host to Friends at Wild Goose Dinner

Z. B. West Jr., district attorney, was dinner host last evening to a small group of his friends, whom he invited to partake of a wild goose dinner and enjoy a social evening at his home, 321 East Santa Clara avenue. The group was largely composed of men who were closely associated with him during his term as city attorney.

A goose killed in the wheat fields of northern California and given the district attorney by a local friend, formed the piece de resistance of the menu, and its preparation manifested the culinary artistry of Mrs. West and her mother, Mrs. M. A. Yarnell, both of whom co-operated in the spirit of the district attorney in complimenting his friends.

Following dinner, radio and graphophone music, and conversation passed the hours.

Covers were laid for Mayor Frank Purlinton, City Clerk Ed Vegely, City Attorney Charles D. Swanner, Deputy County Clerk Earl Abbey, Eddie Holmes, E. K. (Doc) Gerhardt, Horace Fine and the host.

CHURCH SOCIETIES

Beta Sigma Class

The periodic social meeting of the Beta Sigma class of the First Presbyterian church was held Monday at the lovely new home of Mrs. Emmett Rogers, the class president. The rooms were tastefully decorated with roses, and other flowers, which added to the charm of the home. There were about 60 members present to enjoy the program presented by Miss Cora Taylor, and Mrs. F. L. Wilson.

A "fashion show" occupied a large part of the afternoon during which styles of other days were demonstrated by Mrs. Archer, Mrs. Suers, Mrs. Eads, Mrs. Campbell, Mrs. Snyder, Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. Spencer, Miss Taylor, Mrs. Westover and Mrs. Borah. Mrs. Clarence Nisson delighted her hearers with two clever recitations in negro dialect, of which she proved herself a perfect mistress.

Partners for refreshments were found by matching Valentines after which the hostess committee served sandwiches, tea and dainty heart shaped cookies. The refreshments were in charge of Mrs. Scharer, Mrs. Futton and Mrs. Myers, assisted by the hostess, Mrs. Rogers. The afternoon was declared most enjoyable and many expressions of gratitude were given Mrs. Rogers for opening her home to the gathering. It is planned to hold many of the future meetings in homes of the members, instead of at the church as has been the custom.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Daughters of the American Revolution will hold their February meeting in the home of their regent, Mrs. Charles F. Smith, 1717 North Broadway, Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The Junior Music Club will meet Saturday evening at 7:30 o'clock in the Santa Ana Conservatory of Music. The program will be devoted to the study of Mozart, Haydn and Handel. Members are reminded to bring their dues.

TWENTY-SEVENTH BIRTHDAY IS CELEBRATED AT ST. ANN'S INN

Probably no birthday party has ever been celebrated under quite the circumstances that attended the twenty-seventh anniversary of its founding, when the members assembled yesterday at St. Ann's Inn for a birthday luncheon. For the occasion which is usually marked by light-hearted gaiety, was saddened because the beloved club mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Mills, was not there, and instead, the club sadly wended its way to the beautiful chapel where the final tribute that human friends could offer, was paid to her.

Dignified Program

However that beautiful spirit that always characterized the founder of the club and all her associations with it, was manifest, and while hearts grieved, lips smiled as she would have had it. A certain dignity marked the entire program, which was shortened considerably from what was originally planned. Mrs. W. S. Chandler, the president, greeted the club members and guests in the foyer of the Inn, and promptly at 12:30 o'clock all sought their places in the main dining-room where tables were beautiful with Spanish iris and daffodils, spring's own flowers.

At each place was a dainty name card hand-painted in violets, the artistic work of Mrs. R. Ruth Tiffany, and the club's colors (violet and white) were further expressed in a wee cluster of fragrant violets tied with white ribbon and placed at each plate. Mrs. Chandler called for a few program features between courses of the very appetizing luncheon served by Manager Robert L. Bisby.

Talented Musicians

Also she read a beautiful poem of tribute to the founder so dearly "loved and lost awhile, and a letter of sympathy from the Rotary club, lunching in an adjoining room. Eleanor Young Elliott gave a child impersonation that had been a favorite with "Mother" Mills, and Miss Leonora Tompkins presented that delightful trio in which she is pianist, W. G. Axworthy is "celist and James McCarthy, violinist. Each is a finished artist and their ensemble work was thoroughly delightful and marked by rare musicianship. They played "Adagio Cantabile" by Beethoven and "Reve Angeli" by Rubenstein with marked beauty of expression and powers of interpretation.

Talk on Germany

Miss Jessie Lasby was introduced as the speaker of the afternoon, and gave a talk on "Social Conditions in Germany." Her powers of observation and an ability to make her hearers see the scenes and conditions described, combined to offer a most valuable interval and the clubwomen were given a keener insight into conditions in Germany that all their careful reading could have yielded. She spoke no longer than fifteen minutes, but covered a wide field in the brief time.

Final Musical Numbers

The program closed with music when Warren Kramer, talented young violinist of Santa Monica, was introduced. He is a cousin of one of the club members, Mrs. George Klever, 221 Cypress street, and is one of the younger violin teachers of the Bay city where he not only plays in the Santa Monica Symphony orchestra, but conducts a violin orchestra of his own, of some score of young violinists.

Miss Ruth Armstrong as his accompanist, played with her usual skill and beauty of expression. He chose "Legende" by Wienawski in which he displayed a very fine technique and understanding of musical values. Those fortunate enough to have heard him, predicted a splendid future for him. As his final number he played Kreisler's "Old Refrain," upon which solemnly beautiful note, the 1927 birthday party of the well-known club came to a close and the clubwomen went to voice their tender farewells to their leader.

Members and guests who were present, were Mesdames W. S. Chandler, president, H. H. Clement, M. C. Williams, Harvey Riggle, Mary McAllister, William Whitehead, Walter Moore, Dr. Evelyn Peo, Kate Rinsched, Mary Rinsched, D. L. Beal, I. A. Annis, Clara Wedgewood, E. G. Evening at Cards Is Compliment Paid Recent Bride Planned as a post-nuptial courtesy for Mrs. Bernard Brock (William Ann Gohres) whose wedding was a recent event of interest, was a delightful party of the week, at which Mrs. J. W. Martin entertained a group of twenty-four friends of the young bride.

Mrs. Martin chose the valentine motif and made her home on West Third street, gay with the pretty colors and quaint appointments which were most appropriate for a bride-honoree. She was assisted in pleasant hostess duties by Mrs. Charles Gilker and Miss Bernice Jeanne Gohres, sister of the honor guest.

Cards were the main diversion, and scores were won by Mrs. Robert Conklin and Miss Hilda Koral. Later in the evening, games of a various nature were enjoyed, and in these Miss Dorothy Eikholtz and Mrs. Florian Eikholtz, both of Anaheim, excelled.

The bride was made the recipient of many beautiful gifts, which her friends showered upon her, and before the evening came to a close, refreshments placed the crowning touch on the pleasant affair.

CHICKENS GASED AND CARRIED AWAY

Thirty-five white leghorn pullets were stolen from the place of O. H. Anderson, Lampson avenue, between Pine and Ninth streets, Garden Grove, last night, according to a report filed today with the sheriff's office.

An investigation, made by Deputy Sheriff Smith, revealed that the chickens were gassed and taken through an orange grove to a waiting automobile.

The chicken theft is the first reported from the Garden Grove district in several months, it was said.

Seek Annexation To Light District

Annexation of territory adjacent to the Buena Park lighting district, as a part of that district, was asked in a petition filed yesterday with the county supervisors. Hearing on the matter has been set for February 23. The petition was signed by 24 property owners, who claim to represent at least a fourth of the land owners and an equal proportion of the assessed valuation in the territory proposed to be annexed.

Small Maiden Honored With Happy Party On Birthday

Little Ina Mae Stice was a very happy child when her fourth birthday was celebrated recently by her mother, Mrs. C. R. Stice, who asked a group of children to her home on West Fourth street, for a birthday party.

Merry games were played on the lawn and a number of kodak views were secured of the romping children, to serve as mementoes of the day. Late in the afternoon, all were taken into the house while Ina Mae opened her many packages and displayed her gifts to admiring young eyes. Refreshments were then served at a table prettily decorated in pink and white, with nut cups and candies to harmonize, and centered with a large white cake with Ina Mae's name traced on it in pink letters between the four pink candles.

Mrs. Stice was assisted in directing the games and entertaining the children by Mrs. Wilcox. Children enjoying the party with the small maid were Maxine Bingle, Constance Faulkner, Billy Wilcox, Dorothy Kolbe, Betty Kolbe, Elaine Roberts, Chester Roberts, Lurline Greenman and Johnnie Greenman. The guests also included Ina Mae's grandmother, Mrs. W. H. Stice; her aunts, Mrs. J. E. Stice of Illinois and Mrs. C. A. Preston of Tustin; Mrs. J. Bingle, Mrs. L. D. Faulkner, Mrs. D. W. Wilcox, Mrs. E. Kolbe, Mrs. H. F. Roberts and Mrs. Greenman.

Alleged Traffic Law Breaker May Be Given Freedom

Booked in the county jail on a charge of violation of the state motor vehicle act, J. P. Beahn, 35, 813 Bullard avenue, Los Angeles, may be freed today because of no complaint being filed against him, it was intimated by Captain Meehan, of the state police.

Beahn was arrested early today on the Irvine road after his car is alleged to have been driven off the road and against a telephone pole. Beahn was not injured.

Officers Aldrich and Stinson made the arrest.

THE ROMANCE OF AMERICA: Nathan Forrest

Sketches By Kroesen
Synopsis By Braucher

Fort Pillow, Forrest's next objective, was attacked on April 12, 1864. Even after capture seemed inevitable, the garrison, composed partly of negroes, resisted, and it was only after one of Forrest's officers had cut down the United States flag that the attack subsided. Reports of the "massacre" were carried to President Lincoln.

Lincoln, after hearing the facts of the case, was convinced that a "massacre" had taken place, but not at Forrest's instigation.

Wrath throughout the north flamed high at Forrest, but after the facts were known, the Confederate general was exonerated.

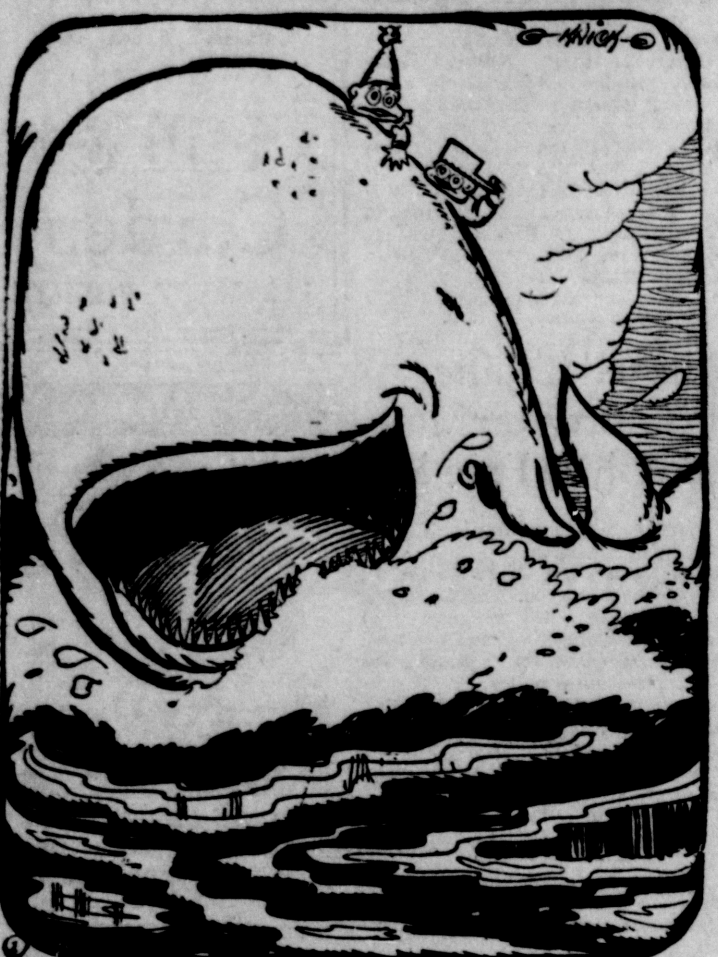

In May Sherman left Chattanooga on his famous march through Georgia. He reckoned with Forrest, assigning General Sturgis, with 8000 men as rear guard. It was not enough men. At Brice's Crossroads, Forrest, at the head of 2000 men, lashed Sturgis' forces into a pell-mell retreat that lasted all one night.

THE TINYMITES

BY HAL COCHRAN

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

"My goodness, something's surely wrong," said Scouty as they moved along. "This thing we're on knows how to sail." And when they saw a head rise high and shoot some water towards the sky. Of course the Tinties promptly knew that they were on a whale.

The water that had spouted out, went up real high, then turned about and splashed down on the Tinties and got them soaking wet. Said Scouty, "We're in danger now. I wish we could escape somehow. Our boat's still dragging on behind, but too far out to get."

The whale picked up a lot of speed, and Coppy said, "We surely need to keep our wits about us so that none of us will slip." They braced their feet and held on tight and Mister Whale swayed left and right. "Course anyone can realize it was a dangerous trip.

Once Clowny slipped and nearly fell, but Coppy luckily heard him yell, and grabbed him tight around the waist and held him on his feet. Said he, "You'd best hang to my hand. We're too far out to swim to land, so falling in the water, now would be far from a treat."

"I'm going to have a cold, I'll bet," said Scouty. "Cause I'm soaking wet. We never should have landed on this whale while out at sea." And Coppy snapped, "You can't blame us and there's no sense to make a fuss. We don't know what will happen so we'll have to wait and see."

The whale moved faster through the foam. The Tinties wished that they were home, but everyone just kept real still and fought off spells of fright. They saw the sun go slowly down. The sky turned red and blue and brown, and everyone then realized 'twas drawing close to night.

(The Tinties get a good ducking in the next story.)

TOO MANY WOMEN BELIEVE THEIR USEFULNESS IS PAST WHEN REALLY JUST BEGUN

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

The little teacher put the last shelled pencil in the rack and locked the drawer of her desk. She was tired. Tired not only of teaching Antonio Cabotti to say his sibilants softly and Izzy Korbetski to say his sharply, but tired of trying to figure out a problem of her own.

Here it was another year and things were just as they were last year and the year before and the year before that. Ben urging her to get married, mother at home with no one to support her, and an impasse in the situation! Ben said he liked her mother, but that he wanted a home without complications. He had had turmoil in his own home for years and he was looking for quietness and peace.

Jean, an older sister of the little teacher, was married, had three children, and wanted and needed her mother. It was a subject of much discussion. The little teacher maintained that her mother should never leave the old home if she could help it. Besides, if Jean had her mother, she would be nursemaid for the babies and a general factotum of utility.

"But I'd rather go, dear," the mother would remark, when the discussion came up. "Then you and Ben can get married. Jean needs me, and although I realize I wouldn't have it very easy (for children do wear me out, even my grandchildren), I can't sacrifice you."

"And I can't sacrifice you," the little teacher always replied.

At five o'clock as the little teacher and her mother sat down to a candle-lit supper at the fine old mahogany table in the dim old dining room, in blew Uncle Henry from the west. He was munching his cinnamon toast loudly when suddenly he said to his sister, "How old are you, Doll?"

"Forty-seven."

"Why don't you go to work?"

Dead silence! Shocked, horrified silence!

BEAUTY CHATS

NEW HAIR DRESSING STYLES

Every few days an alarmed young girl writes me to find out whether the short hair is going out. I always answer no; everyone is against it. Everyone is in favor of short hair, from the barber who makes four times as much money from the short as the long haired style, to the woman herself who finds six minutes ample time to wash and dress completely now, as against nearly 60 in the days of long hair, long skirts, petticoats, and corsets.

There is this tendency in hair dressing styles—instead of the very short, tucked-behind-the-ear, boyish style, the hair is worn a little longer, much fluffier, rather more wavy than it was a year ago. You cannot wear the busque waist, very full skirt evening dresses that are coming into favor, the "robe de style" as the French call these picture frocks, with a severely cropped head like a boy's. But, if your hair is as long as the tip of the ears, it can be brushed into smooth boyishness for tailored suits or sports clothes, and brought forward and fluffed and perhaps waved the least bit, and made feminine for the frilly dresses.

A great many women are adopting this double fashion of hair dressing. Even if the hair is naturally wavy, it can be slicked down a bit with the comb and brush and kept in a plain and meek condition during the day. But at night, by brushing it every way to make it stand up, by sprinkling it perhaps with the least bit of powder to fluff it, by turning the ends up, or under, with a not too hot iron, the whole character of the head can be changed. And for that matter, the whole character of the face.

This fashion is excellent for the woman with very fine, straight hair. She can achieve the smooth effect during the day easily, and with a little cleverness the feminine, wavy, soft style of the evening. She'll need to use an iron or curlers, but that can't be helped. Try parting the hair different sides too, it rests the head and changes the whole character of the hair.

Miss L. L.—Try dancing to improve the shape of your legs. Beauty—Apar-agar is a Japanese seaweed that dissolves into a soft gelatinous mass when it is mixed with moist foods. It is used to cleanse the intestinal tract and it has no other uses. It is much preferred to a cathartic because it does not irritate. It has no action on the bust whatever.

Change the parting of the hair.

Interested—There is no reason for believing grey hair is hereditary. A healthy scalp will be all that is required to keep the hair perpetually young.

Just Folks

by Edgar A. Guest

VANITY

The more I see it seems to me the trouble with us all is that we grow too big in pride, in trial shrink too small; For when the good Lord prospers us and happiness is ours, We take the credit to ourselves and boast about our powers, But when our skies are overcast and plans have gone astray, We wonder why the Lord above should punish us that way.

We fancy we were born to smile, to dance our way along That our particular lives should be one endless round of song, And when delight is ours to know and we're victorious, We act as though we'd merely gained what ought to come to us; But let the storms of trouble rage, we wince beneath the blow, And wonder why the Lord above takes vengeance on us so.

Too big in pride; too little in life's sterner tests are we.

We strut the world in arrogance when we are trouble free, And then we whimper in despair and falter in belief, Forgetting that to all who live comes pain and loss and grief.

Although about us day by day we've watched the shadows fall, We blame it on the Lord when we must share the fate of all.

Lord, make me bigger in my loss and smaller in my gain, Teach me to see from Thee each day come both delight and pain, Teach me to understand my tears; to know why they are sent That I may never cry aloud against Thy punishment.

Teach me to know that joy and grief walk ever side by side, Let me grow bigger in my faith, and smaller in my pride.

Queer Quirks of NATURE

BY ARTHUR N. PACK

President, American Nature Ass'n.

What, from its name, would you imagine the hell-diver to be? Undoubtedly some inhabitant of the water, probably of fiendish disposition and conjectured connection with the lower regions.

But this is the name commonly applied to the Grebe, a water bird capable of performing remarkable feats in diving.

Grebes are easily distinguished from all other water birds by their feet, which are placed far behind, and have elongated toes furnished with broad lobes of skin and flat blunt nails.

Although in general they are averse to flying they have much greater power in this line than would at first seem possible on examination of their wings. Their plumage is short and close, and on the breast it is so white and has such luster that it is in great demand among milliners. This was one of the principal reasons for a price first being laid upon the head of a hell-diver, and hunting him became a profitable business.

But it did not take the bird long to realize that it was best for him to abandon his former habits and become a fugitive. Since that time the grebe has been known as one of the most evasive of the water-birds, and will dive at the twitch of a hand.

There is only one case known where a hell-diver has been tamed, and that is merely because the so-called tamer is unconscious of the fact that he has accomplished anything noteworthy. He is a fisherman, living apart from the rest of the world, and to him, as he should be to all of us, the hell-diver is merely one of his numerous wild friends.

PLAINTIFFS GET JUDGMENT FOR UNPAID RENTAL

Mr. and Mrs. Victor W. Sutton, of Orana, today were awarded judgment for $2150 against the estate of the late Theodore Roberts. Anaheim theater owner, for delinquent rental upon a lease of ground occupied by the Orana theater. The judgment also included taxes upon the property, paid by the plaintiffs.

According to testimony at the trial in Superior Judge James L. Allen's court, today, the land was leased for 20 years at $100 per month. At the time of Roberts' death, in 1925, the sum of $450 was due and no rental had since been paid. There was no contest made by the defendants against the plaintiffs' claim. Attorneys Rush and McCormac, Los Angeles, represented the estate, Attorney L. F. Coburn, of Orange, appearing for Mr. and Mrs. Sutton.

The Orana theater property is that involved in another court action, tried Monday before Superior Judge H. G. Ames. In the latter action, Herman J. Snow, Orange electrical dealer, is attempting to get judgment for $714 against the land, to satisfy a lien for work done in the theater for Barnett and McDowell, who held a sub-lease from the Roberts estate. The case was submitted to the court on briefs, on the question whether the land owners, not being interested in the building and having no knowledge of the work, could be held liable for it. It is now under advisement.

J. R. Hunt Will Represent Reno Road Exposition

J. R. Hunt, of Santa Ana, has been named Southern California representative of the Nevada Transcontinental Highways exposition, to be held in Reno June 27 to August 5, according to notification received by the Santa Ana man from W. A. Shephard, manager of the fair and products display. Funds already have been set aside for the construction of a $100,000 California building, to house the county exhibits, Shephard wrote to Hunt. One hundred acres of beautiful Idylwild park has been aside for the location of the buildings. Hunt said that he hoped to arrange for exhibits from all Southern California counties. He will spend the next two months at the task.

Will Distribute Fair and Orange Show Literature

Fifty thousand pieces of literature, advertising the Orange County fair and the California Valencia Orange show, will be distributed by the Motor Transit company two months prior to the events, Max Green, general manager of the bus company, promised representatives of the two county events at a meeting, last night, in Anaheim. Present at the Anaheim gathering were Harry Welch, Newport Beach; George W. Reid, secretary Anaheim Chamber of Commerce; Jay R. Hunt, manager of the county fair; George Raymer, secretary Santa Ana Chamber of Commerce; and H. A. Lake, president of the Orange County Fair association.

Movie Chatterbox

HOLLYWOOD.—A movie cowboy who actually hails from the wide open spaces—such is Ken Maynard. Maynard spent his boyhood days on a ranch not far from Mission, Tex. Right at home he learned the horsemanship which is rapidly carrying him to the front as a western star.

"There's nothing like the fall and spring round-ups for learning how to ride," Ken once remarked to me. "These faunts across the plains teach a fellow more than all the riding academies or circuses in the world. We used to have wild horses to 'break in,' too. And that required real riding."

Ken's mannerisms are a dead give-away to the fact that he didn't spend all his life on the ranges. He has the unmistakable stamp of a college education, but his diploma in civil engineering hasn't been worth a nickel to him. Maynard is the best trick rider in Hollywood and makes love a la Barrymore.

He spent some years as a circus rider, winding up his career under the big tent as star rider for the Ringling Brothers-Barnum and Bailey show.

"I came out here in 1923 with a short term contract with Fox," says Maynard. "In my first picture I had the good fortune to be directed by Lynn Reynolds, who has directed some of Tom Mix's best films. After I had played in two or three westerns, they started using me in ordinary dramatic films. I didn't want that kind of acting because I knew I would never get me anywhere. So I quit."

After leaving Fox, Maynard signed for a series of westerns with Charles R. Rogers. His last two pictures, "The Unknown Cavalier" and "The Overland Stage," have justified his own opinion that he could make good as a western star.

Let Contract For Fair Concessions

Sure sign of spring—the contract for the concessions at the 1927 Orange County fair has been let.

J. R. Hunt, manager of the fair, and George Raymer, chairman of the concessions committee, announced that the Crafts Greater shows were the successful bidders. The Crafts outfit was the winner of the contract last year.

This year the company will add several more shows and several new riding devices. The fair will be held September 5 to 10, inclusive, on the same location as last year.

WILL CONTEST IS HALTED BY JUDGE ALLEN

A contest over the probate of the will of the late Mrs. Elizabeth Kruse, of Garden Grove, vanished suddenly in Superior Judge James L. Allen's court late yesterday.

When Judge Allen held that the estate was not subject to contest, it was held in joint tenancy between Mrs. Kruse and her son, Fred Kruse, who was sole beneficiary under his mother's will, as well as joint tenant. The estate is valued at $20,000.

The contest had occupied two days in court when Judge Allen halted it. It was linked to a contest over the appointment of a guardian for Fred Kruse, which resulted in the appointment of the First National bank, of Santa Ana. Mrs. Constance Kellogg, niece of Kruse, was seeking the appointment of the bank.

Mrs. Edith K. Beder, of Los Angeles, sister of Fred Kruse, had petitioned to probate her mother's will. The will, which was signed 10 days before death of Mrs. Kruse, on Dec. 30, 1925, left the entire estate to her son, Fred, for his lifetime, then to the daughter, Mrs. Beder. Another son, Julius Kruse, of Chicago, was omitted from mention in the will, which stated that Fred Kruse was made beneficiary because the property was received originally from him. An attack was made upon the will at the court hearing, it being charged that Mrs. Beder had wielded undue influence over her mother and that the will had not been signed in the presence of the purported witnesses.

$12,425 Estate Left to Widow And Five Sons

A $12,425 estate was left by the late H. P. Giddings, of Anaheim, according to a petition filed in superior court today by his son, David Giddings, who seeks appointment as administrator.

The widow, Mrs. Jennie Giddings, and five sons, David, William, Harrison, George and Robert Giddings, all of Anaheim R. D. 3, are the heirs. The petition was filed through Attorneys Head, Rutan and Scovel. It states that the estate consists of a half-interest in 30-acres of citrus orchard at Yorba, besides a half-interest in farming implements and household furnishings.

Petition Is Filed For Will Probate

Carl E. Krieger, of Lake Arrowhead, has filed a petition in superior court here to probate the will of his mother, the late Mrs. Pauline Krieger, who died in Santa Ana on January 25.

The estate, consisting chiefly of residence property in San Diego, is valued at $6350. Under the will, Carl Krieger is bequeathed $1000 and a piano, while certain other effects were left to Pauline F. Hill, of San Diego, his sister. The residue is divided equally between the four children of the deceased, Carl Krieger, Pauline Hill, Christina Winter, of Los Angeles, and Jessie K. Cochems, of Santa Ana. Attorneys Head, Rutan and Scovel, of Santa Ana, represent the petitioner.

Alleged Speeders Get Continuances

Charged with speeding 50 miles an hour on the Irvine boulevard, C. H. Bulah and William Rashall, Los Angeles motorists, were scheduled to go on trial in Justice Kenneth Morrison's court today, but the cases were continued until February 16.

The change in date was made at the request of the defendants.

The two men were arrested by Officers Cain and Aldrich, of the state traffic squad.

JUNIOR HIGHS MAKE ENTRIES IN EISTEDDFOOD

Members of the Santa Ana Boys' chorus in the Frances E. Willard junior high school, under the direction of Miss Esther Jean Davis, will enter the music eisteddfod of California, the Santa Ana preliminaries of which will be held in March.

The selections to be sung are "Friendship," by Haesche, and "We Meet Again Tonight Boys," an old college song.

The Julia C. Lathrop Junior High School Boys' Glee club, most of the members of which also are in the Boys' Chorus, will enter the junior high school glee clubs' competition. Miss Edith Cornell directs the Lathrop boys. The Lathrop girls' glee club also will be entered.

Mrs. Frances Hunt Beeson, director of music in the Santa Ana schools, said that several of the grade schools might enter singing organizations. Miss McIntyre music teacher in McKinley school, is said to be eager to enter one of her singing groups.

The preliminary contests in Santa Ana are to be held March 26 and the county finals in Fullerton, on April 2. Winners in the county competition will take part in the state finals, to be held in Los Angeles, in May.

Mrs. Irene Tunison Peek, Santa Ana eisteddfod chairman, said that entries might be made at the Shafter music store. Especially does she desire more entries in the violin, band, orchestral, dance and voice departments.

A case containing 45 women's silk dresses, valued at $590, was stolen from an automobile, parked on a Fullerton street, last night, according to a report filed with Santa Ana police today by Jack Grand, Fullerton. The case and dresses were the property of the Max Levine company, 120 East Eighth street, Los Angeles.

WORLD UNREST IS TRACED BY PEACE WORKER

More than 200 members and guests of the Santa Ana Y. M. C. A. heard an eloquent plea for a unified belief in Christian principles and good fellowship in communal, national and international relations, made by Harry N. Holmes of New York City, at the annual dinner meeting of the institution, held last night in the association building. Holmes is the field secretary of the World Alliance for International Friendship Through the Churches.

Other speakers were Harry O. Hill, Los Angeles, state secretary of the California Association of the Y. M. C. A., and O. H. Barr, Santa Ana, member of the national council of the Y. M. C. A. and president of the Santa Ana association. Col. M. B. Wellington, director of the Santa Ana association, acted as toastmaster.

Speaking on the "Supreme Opportunity of Our Generation," Holmes told his listeners that the present state of unrest in the world may be traced to three big movements, which were destined to turn the current of history into fresh channels.

Cites Three Movements
The first of these, he said, was the expansion of Europe, when England, France, Spain, Italy, Germany and Holland established colonies. This movement was followed by industrial revolution, which took manufacture from the home and individual shop to the factory, with its mass production and labor saving devices.

The third movement, destined to change the order of things, the speaker asserted, was the French revolution, engendered and fanned by the political philosophies of Rousseau. In its wake followed the American War of Independence.

Each of these three movements, Holmes declared, gave new direction to the trek of the spirit of man. Each helped gradually to develop consciousness of human solidarity the world over. The message of each was flung over the planet, girdling the world, he said, adding that the newborn spirit was not limited to national limits or race regions.

People Shaping Policies
While not making any direct reference to the present situation in China, the visitor told his listeners that the waters of the Pacific already are stirring. In this connection, he pointed out that today the people as a whole, are taking a part in the shaping of foreign policies.

In conclusion, he pointed out that greater advance toward world peace has developed during the year just closed than in any year since the war, and that, instead of becoming worse, the world is growing better and is faced in the right direction.

A pleasing number on the program was the appearance of the Y. M. C. A. Choristers, who, in addition to other selections, sang the new Santa Ana song, "Santa Ana, the Eden of the World."

MANY UNUSUAL PAINTINGS ARE ON DISPLAY AT LAGUNA BEACH

Walls of Gallery Vibrant With Color When Modernists Show Pictures

NEW ART EXHIBIT HIGHLY PLEASING

In Judging by Old Standards, Much of Work Is Overdone, Critic Asserts

By MARION MUNSON FORREST

Having opened the gallery doors to the more modern painters, the Laguna Beach Art association has gone in for even more unusual things in the current exhibition. The walls are vibrant with color, some of it much overdone, according to old standards. But the modernists are in evidence and that is something in a gallery which has been overly careful as to who exhibited on its walls. The present exhibition is highly entertaining and effective.

The best painting in the show is declared to be one by Donna Schuster. She has painted, using water colors as her medium, a picture of the sea gently breaking at the foot of a pile of rough-plaided her color with the meticulous care that water colors demand and her tones are clear and transparent. Action, the apex of shadowgraphy, and skill in the use of her medium make the Schuster picture stand out above all the others. It is called "Laguna Coast."

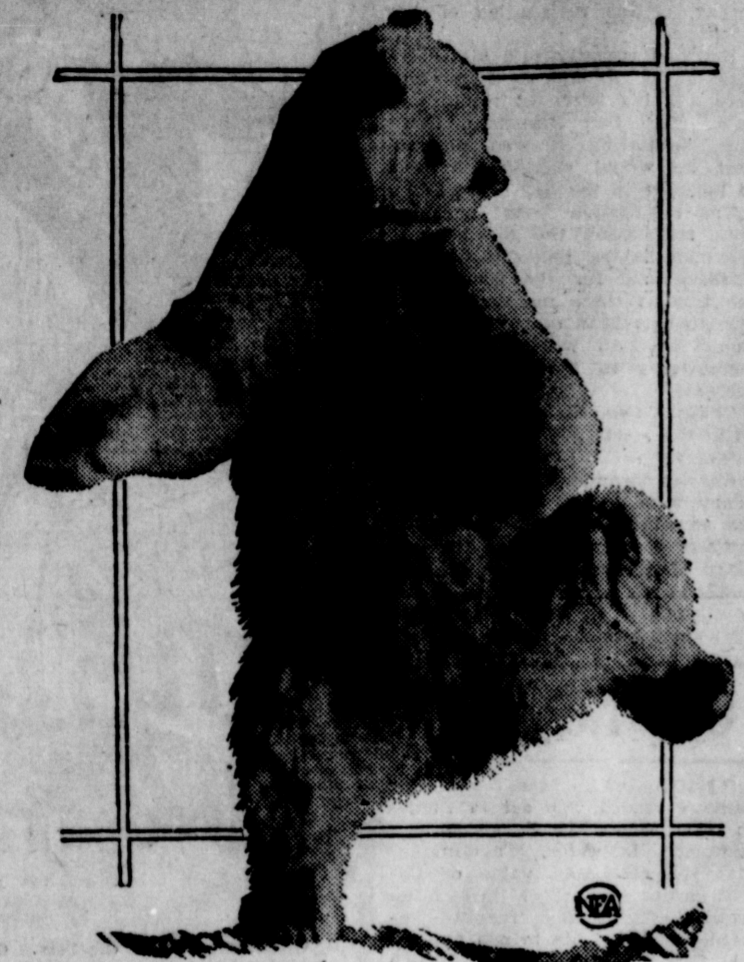

Here's "Jolly Hannah" Karl Jens is showing a quaint sort of picture. It is titled "Jolly Hannah," and shows a rather impish looking old woman in an attitude of comic appeal. The picture exudes good nature, fun and a keen sense of the ludicrous. It considerably brightens the February show.

Anna A. Hill is showing two canvases. One of the pictures is a small one of the sea and it holds, within its small scope, more real atmosphere than many of the larger paintings which have been hung. Small as it is, "A Winter Sea" stands out in the exhibition. The second Hill's picture is a landscape called "California Autumn Hills."

A picture by Edith Truesdell is one of the finest things which the painter has sent to the Laguna gallery for some time. It is not a picture that the general public will like. It is too raw, too unusual, too unbridled. But it is great, nevertheless. Mrs. Truesdell calls the picture, "Apache Women," clothes them in a riot of color, and places them against the vividness of New Mexico's chalk walls; all this with a decorative effect, almost poster-like. "Apache Women" is, un-

VALLEY IRRIGATION BOARD VOTES TO INCREASE RATES WHILE PUMPS ARE RENTED

While rented pumps are being used during the peak of the dry season, the Santa Ana Valley Irrigation company will raise the rates for water slightly, in order to not run behind financially, it was decided at the annual meeting of the stockholders, held in Orange, yesterday. Spring irrigating by ranchers would alleviate the situation during the summer and make the bill for water from outside wells less, according to the annual report of the board of directors.

Outside wells were used periodically between May 28 and August 30 of last year, the report stated, at an added expense of 1 cent per inch per hour.

Drilling Falls Faced with the necessity of borrowing money, the S. A. V. I. stockholders authorized the borrowing of such money as it needed, up to $200,000. During the last year, the company borrowed $8000, the annual report disclosed. Financial difficulty was encountered when two wells, drilled jointly with the Anaheim Union Water company, on the Durkee ranch, at a total cost of $5569.43, failed to produce any water. Another joint move with the Anaheim Union Water company was the purchase of the Bent ranch adjoining the Durkee property, at a cost of $7500. Such legal steps as are necessary to continue the articles of incorporation of the company were ordered taken by the directors. The annual report of the board

SANTA ANA'S CANNOT SPEAK TO LONDON YET

But It Won't Be Long Now Before Flappers Will Be Able to Phone Prince

Eventually subscribers to the telephone service in Santa Ana will be able to converse with relatives or friends in London, provided they don't get the wrong number, telephone officials admitted today, when a reporter tried to put through a call to the lord mayor.

It is possible to talk across the Atlantic from New York, Philadelphia, Washington and Chicago, but Santa Ana will have to wait, it was confessed. How long the wait will be, Santa Ana telephone executives could not estimate, but judging from the progress now being made in the installation of the special equipment in the east, a Santa Ana sheik could put in a hurry call to his English sweetheart and grow a first class beard before the call was completed.

But once the trans-Atlantic telephone service is perfected, it will be an easy matter for wives in Santa Ana to trace their mates all over Europe, if need be, inasmuch as rapid connections can be made out of London to cities east, including Singapore, Calcutta, Berlin, Aix-les-Bains, Deauville, Cannes and Florence, the latter a city in Italy.

Of course, in speaking around the world, one must consider the cost, it was said. To speak to a friend in London the approximate cost, from the east coast, for three minutes, is about $100. Thus, a call to the British capital would represent the regular long distance tolls to New York and the trans-oceanic fee. Everything considered, $200 might be involved for a few cheerful words from California trickling into London on a foggy morning.

A striking fact about the soon-to-be telephone service is that a call put through from California at night, even though the connection was almost instantaneous, would not reach the London listener until tomorrow, because of the difference in time. Thus, the Santa Ana would be speaking yesterday to his British cousin tomorrow.

VETERANS OF 91ST WILL MEET IN L.A.

Almost a score of ex-service men, former members of the famous 91st division, now residing in Orange county, expect to attend the meeting tonight, of the 91st Division association, to be held in the hall, 1816 South Figueroa street, Los Angeles, according to an announcement made today by George Platt, leader of 91st division activities in Santa Ana.

Marco H. Hellman, vice president of the Merchants' National bank, will be the speaker of the evening. His address will be on "The Ex-Service Man and the Banker."

A regular army dinner, consisting of salad, beef stew, boiled potatoes, baked beans, bread and butter, prunes and coffee, prepared by men who served with the 91st division as cooks and mess sergeants, will be served at 7 p. m. Vaudeville numbers provided by Hellman, will feature the entertainment.

One of the most notable long-distance swims in America was that performed in 1923 by C. A. Walker, who swam across Lake Erie from Pelee Lighthouse, Ontario, to Lorain, O. The distance is 53 miles and Walker covered it in 20 hours and 15 minutes, being unhampered by tides or strong currents.

Cesar Mohawk, of Santa Barbara, who entered the Catalina channel swim, recently demonstrated his powers of endurance of remaining in the water 80 hours.

SENATORS JOHNSON AND CARAWAY BOTH CLAIM RIGHT TO OCCUPY OLD MANSION

Senator Caraway, of Arkansas, wants his rare old house back, but Senator Hiram Johnson, of California, won't move out. The house is Riverside, colonial mansion, built in 1757 by Benedict Calvert, in Prince George county, Maryland. Johnson (left) the tenant, contends he has a lease running to the expiration of his senate term in 1929, while Caraway asserts he bought the property from T. H. Pickford with the understanding he was to get possession at once.

SPEAKER TELLS NECESSITIES OF GOOD BUSINESS

"Right quality, right quantity and right mode of conduct—these three make service and spell success whether one be employer or employee. These three are the measure of service rendered by a merchant, without which one's business cannot grow."

The speaker was Frank A. Hoy, of Los Angeles, a specialist in business training, who attended yesterday's meeting of the Rotary club, at St. Ann's Inn, Harvey A. Gardner, vice-president of the Orange County title company, member of the Santa Ana club's committee on business methods, presided at the meeting. Music was provided during the meal by the Collegiate orchestra, present through the courtesy of E. D. Yost, of Yost's Broadway theater.

Hoy, a former Rotarian in Seattle, Wn., opened his address with a reference to the Rotary motto, "He profits most who serves best."

Must Have Balance "One must balance duties, obligations and responsibilities against rights, privileges and prerogatives," said Hoy, "and secure their proper relationship."

"Life is subject to rules just as a football game. Nature keeps no books, but those who violate nature's rules pay the penalty. The difference between football and nature is that a player who breaks a football rule may not be caught. There is no escaping nature; the violator pays."

"When we find that of every 100 men, who were accounted for at 25 years of age, 36 die before they are 65, 54 are broke at that age, five are working, four are well off and one wealthy, we come to a realization that life and prosperity should be played as a game of skill instead of a game of chance."

"In every business, the three basic sides of a service triangle are quality, quantity and mode of conduct. A bookkeeper, for instance, might have quality in his work, but be unable to turn out quantity, or vice versa, or he might have both quality and quantity and not be desirable as an employee because of his mode of conduct, either in the office or out of it."

Judged by Employees "He may think it is none of the boss' business what he does outside of office hours, but it is his business, for businesses are judged by its employees and an employee, whose mode of conduct is not in keeping with the business he works for, is no better than damaged goods on the shelves."

"An expert dairymen once applied three principles of desirability to his herd of cows. One cow had to go to the butcher because she didn't produce enough quality milk, for the butterfat content was too low. Another went to the butcher because she didn't produce enough milk, although the quality of what she did produce was good. Another went to the butcher even though she produced more than satisfactorily in quality and in quantity; the trouble with her was her mode of conduct, for she kicked over the bucket whenever she got a chance and she hooked the other cows viciously."

"Service from a business point of view is not based on sentimentality, but is based on sound economic law."

Two Seek Traffic Cop Appointments

Two more names were added today to the sizable list of applications on file with the county supervisors for appointment as state traffic officers. B. A. Craig, of Seal Beach, and Edwin A. Curtis, of Santa Ana, filed their applications with the board.

He Had Broken Leg, But Didn't Know It

To have a broken leg is bad enough, but to have a broken leg and not even know how you got it is like adding insult to injury.

At least, that was the way the matter may look to Werneth Bickel, Boy Scout, who lives at 907 Towner street.

Werneth is in bed with his leg in a plaster cast and the doctor says he has to stay there for four or five weeks. And the boy doesn't know how he got hurt.

For quite a number of days previous to his incarceration in bed, the young scout went to school, and kept up most of his activities around home, but he had a limp in one leg. He complained of a sore spot just below the knee. Finally, his parents took him to a doctor and had an x-ray taken, with the result that the discovery was made that a bone was cracked.

HIGH SCHOOL P.-T. A. TO MEET TOMORROW

Members of the Santa Ana high school P.-T. A. are looking forward to tomorrow afternoon's meeting, to be held at 3 o'clock, in the "Y" hut. A special program has been planned for the occasion by Ernest Crozier Phillips, teacher of drama and oral English.

As a special attraction, Phillips will present "Twelve Pound Look," a one-act play. Those who will take part in the play are Miss Marian Brunner, Miss Virginia Brannon and Judson Riley. The boys' quartet will sing several numbers.

Mothers of the students who entered the high school at the opening of this semester will be special guests that they may meet the high school teachers.

He also has been a director of the Home Mutual Building and Loan association for many years and at this time is president of that organization.

Hoeller was arrested in Santa Ana early yesterday morning by Officers Arthur Holmes and Merle Dean, when he was alleged to have been driving "all over" the street.

WOMAN LODGED IN BASTILE ON BIGAMY CHARGE

Mrs. Eva Diebolt, 40, wanted here on a charge of bigamy, was arrested yesterday in Los Angeles by Jimmy Smith, deputy sheriff, and brought to the county jail, where she awaits a preliminary examination in Justice Kenneth Morrison's court.

The woman was arrested following the issuance of a complaint, signed by Anthony F. Diebolt, Los Angeles, which alleges that Mrs. Diebolt already was married when she married Diebolt in Santa Ana on May 29, 1925.

The Diebolts were married by Justice Kenneth Morrison, according to a marriage certificate, now in the hands of the district attorney, which likely will be used as evidence against the woman. The complaint against the Diebolt woman was issued after two alleged husbands of Mrs. Diebolt had visited the district attorney's office and told their troubles to Chief Deputy District Attorney Lew Blodgett.

According to information in the district attorney's office, Mrs. Diebolt was a Mrs. George B. Cox at the time she married Diebolt. Before that she was a Mrs. James Borton, having married Borton in Baker City, Ore. It is alleged, she is said to have told Cox that she was divorced from Borton and, according to a statement made to Blodgett by Diebolt, the woman told him (Diebolt) that Cox had died in the home of one Margaret Smith, in Los Angeles.

The Diebolts separated on January 11 of this year, while living in Los Angeles, and it was on January 17, it was said, that Diebolt learned that Cox was not dead.

In the meantime, Mrs. Diebolt filed action for annulment of her marriage to Diebolt, in a Los Angeles court and in the complaint alleged that her former husband, Cox, had died on a ship enroute to South America, according to information Blodgett claims to have.

Cox is said to have told the district attorney that Mrs. Diebolt had divorced her first husband, Borton, in Idaho. When the second and third husbands began to compare notes, however, Mrs. Diebolt was found to have told her third husband that Borton was divorced in the state of Oregon, Blodgett said.

EX-HUBBY OF CLARA HAMON WEDS HERE

J. W. Gorman, Hollywood film director and former husband of Clara Hamon, the Ardmore, Okla., girl, who sprung into national prominence several years ago, when she shot and killed Jake Hamon, multimillionaire Oklahoma oil man, and Volva Vale, prominent screen star, were married in Santa Ana on December 8, last, it became known here today.

They were married by the Rev. P. T. Porter, pastor of the First Christian church. Records revealed that Miss Vale's name was Viola Irene Lerche, and that this was her second marriage. She was first wed to Albert Russell, from whom she was divorced, and who is the father of her 5-year-old son. Gorman was divorced from his second wife, in Los Angeles, about a year ago, it was said.

Gorman gave his age as 43, and Miss Vale stated her age was 37. The couple's mailing address was given as 801 North Alta Vista boulevard, Los Angeles.

COUNTY BOARD ON RECORD AS OPPOSING FAIR LAND PURCHASE

Petition Urging Buying of Site Presented Few Minutes After Action Taken

$350,000 PROJECT IS IN VIEW, CLAIM

Supervisors Against Taking Over Property Without First Putting It to Vote

When Jay R. Hunt, manager of the Orange county fair, appeared before the county supervisors yesterday afternoon to present a petition, signed by various organizations, which urged the county supervisors to purchase the county fair site and adjacent acreage for a permanent fair grounds, he was just too late to hear the supervisors vote unanimously against just such a proposal.

A resolution introduced by Supervisor Willard Smith, of Orange, was passed, placing the board on record against taking action on the fair grounds purchase without first referring the question to a vote of the taxpayers.

The resolution explained that the initial cost of approximately $75,000 for the land would represent only a small part of the expenditure involved in the step; that before the county completed the buildings, which would be immediately demanded, and then financed flood protection work along the nearby Santa Ana river, to insure the safety of its investment, the expenditure would reach at least $250,000. Members of the board commented that it was even suggested that a $350,000 project was in view.

In False Position In introducing the resolution, Supervisor Smith explained that those favoring the project were placing him in a false position by representing that he virtually was the only member of the board who objected to the purchase. He desired, for that reason, to have the board go on record to have the board's position regarding the matter. Smith and Supervisor John C. Mitchell, of Garden Grove, both stated, with emphasis, their unwillingness to take the step, unless the taxpayers of the county had opportunity to express their approval.

"It would only be an entering wedge," said Smith. "The pressure that has been brought to bear on this board to buy this land would be nothing at all compared to the pressure we would feel, after we bought it, to get us to go ahead with the buildings. And after we erected the buildings it would be folly not to provide protection against overflow of the river."

The roll call vote on the resolution showed all members of the board in accord on the question. The sound of the last "aye" had scarcely died away when Manager Hunt, of the county fair, opened the door and walked in with his petition, asking that the fair site be purchased. Hunt was not aware that the resolution had been passed. His petition was signed by various chambers of commerce and other civic organizations.

Board's Resolution The resolution passed by the board is as follows: "Whereas, there is being discussed at different times over the

ORANGE COUNTY BUILDERS QUIT AS L. A. BRANCH

The Orange County Builders' exchange is no longer a branch of the Los Angeles Builders' exchange. Members of the Orange county organization last night, at a meeting in Garden Grove, voted unanimously to sever relations with the Los Angeles group. The disintegration of the two exchanges is a friendly one, according to Gene Douglas, manager of the Orange county organization.

The Orange county group is the last one to break away from the Los Angeles organization, according to Douglas. All other building exchanges in Southern California have their own charters. Douglas will apply for a national charter for the Orange County exchange at once.

Proposed Legislation Discussed
Orange county building men last night took up the questions and bills now pending before the state legislature regarding the licensing of contractors. Orange county builders expressed themselves as favoring the measure. J. W. Markel, president of the Orange County Builders' exchange, presented a report on the president and secretary meeting of builders' exchanges at Ventura, January 23. C. Carlton, a representative of the affiliated exchanges of Southern California, who has been in Sacramento for some time, also gave a short report to the Orange county group.

Henry F. Lenbke, manager of the San Pedro and Wilmington Builders' exchanges, and J. P. Puckett, San Pedro building material man, were guests of the exchange. Lenbke gave a short talk. A delegation of master painters of Orange county was present at the meeting. Gene Douglas, manager of the Orange County exchange, presented a report on the activities of the organization during the first month of the year.

Steak Dinner Served
The meeting opened with a steak dinner at 6:30 o'clock last night. Following the dinner, a program was presented. C. R. Mawe, master painter, presented a number of sleight-of-hand tricks. Maurice Phillips sang several selections, accompanied on the piano by Henry Garstang.

The next meeting of the organization will be held in Anaheim, March 2.

G. G. LATIMER SAYS THAT S. J. JACKMAN ATTENDS BUT NOT LEADER AT MEETINGS
Editor Register:—Last Friday night, when your reporter interviewed me regarding the formation of a "Citizens Association" for the purpose of bettering our city's affairs, I unintentionally may have said something that caused him to report, as published, that Mr. S. J. Jackman was one of the leaders in the move.

Mr. Jackman was present at these meetings, by invitation, as were others. He stated that while he was in sympathy with some such movement, owing to the condition of Mrs. Jackman's health, he would not take any leading part in the active work of the association. Therefore, to keep the record straight, we ask you to kindly publish this correction.

LEGION PLEADS FOR BOULDER PROJECT

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 2.—Urging President Coolidge to lend assistance in pushing Boulder dam project legislation through congress, the American Legion of California has sent a telegraphic appeal to the president, it was announced.

The following message was sent by John Slavich, state commander:

"The American Legion of California appeals to you to urge the rules committee to cease further delay in reporting out the Boulder dam bill. Forty thousand World War veterans in this state respectfully request your help that congress may vote on the measure this session. The project has been repeatedly approved by both the California and national conventions of the Legion."

Two Men Jailed For Stealing 5 Loaves of Bread

BAKERSFIELD, Feb. 2.—Tom Rodrick and Dan All, both of Glendale, are serving 30-day sentences in the county jail here for stealing five loaves of bread.

Hershel Rainwater, also of Glendale, was granted probation because he was under age.

The three were haled before Judge John Frey, police judge, and pleaded that they were hungry when they raided a bakery truck.

ing the last year to develop a new combined flow of approximately 550 inches, stated the report. A 20-inch well was drilled 975 feet deep, at the pipeyards north of the creek, to produce 250 inches. A well developing 300 inches was drilled 857 feet at the south side of the land, near the Anaheim-Olive bridge, to replace an old well drilled in 1913.

Manufacture Pipe

During the year, 13,374 feet of cement pipe was manufactured. 5506 feet of pipe was replaced, and 3919 feet of pipe laid on new lines, according to the yearly report of W. A. Ralph, superintendent.

During the meeting of the directors, a resolution was adopted as follows: "Resolved: That the flood control bill to be introduced by Dr. C. D. Ball in the California legislature contain, among other provisions, the following: First, that it require a two-thirds vote of the electors in the district to create any bonded indebtedness. Second, that all property, real and personal, located in any district created under said act that may legally be taxed, shall be taxed for repayment of any bonded indebtedness created or incurred therein."

The resolution was introduced by W. A. Greenleaf and seconded by C. A. Palmer.

It also was resolved to levy an assessment of 55 cents per share on the capital stock of the corporation, payable March 2. Because a quorum of the directors was not present, the same board of directors, consisting of A. N. Saxton, president; W. A. Greenleaf, A. M. Robinson, W. L. Marchant and C. A. Palmer, will hold over for the year. The board re-elected O. E. Mansur, secretary; W. A. Ralph, superintendent, and W. W. Hoy, engineer.

Committee appointments were made by Saxton as follows: Zanja committee, C. A. Palmer, L. L. Marchant; litigation committee, A. N. Saxton; W. A. Greenleaf; finance committee, L. L. Marchant and A. M. Robinson.

Cards, Trojans Clash on Court In Two Matches

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 2.—Having been beaten in the first game of the basketball series, University of Southern California will seek revenge at Stanford Friday and Saturday when the Trojans and Cards play the final two games.

Southern California is out to win both games from Stanford and get back into the Pacific Coast Conference basketball race by so doing. In the opening game of the series, Stanford edged out a 28 to 27 win over Troy on the Los Angeles' team's home court.

Last Friday, Southern California took a 30 to 27 beating at the hands of the California five. But if the Trojans can win the four remaining games with the northern crews, then they have yet a chance of winning the title.

PACKING, SALE OF AVOCADOS IS DISCUSSED

Deputy Commissioner of Horticulture Writes of State Requirements

BY CHARLES F. COLLINS

Deputy Commissioner
Horticultural Department
Orange County

Avocados when packed, or when shipped, delivered for shipment, offered for sale, or sold in any container must meet certain requirements of the California fruit and vegetable standardization act of 1925. The following has been prepared to give parties handling avocados a brief outline of the provisions of the act.

Avocados must be mature, but not over-ripe. Avocados are considered mature when the edible portion shows an oil content of 8 per cent or over by weight, by chemical analysis. A test by the hand is necessary to make this test. Dealers can be reasonably sure that the fruit which they are selling is mature by familiarizing themselves with the different varieties and the months of the year during which such varieties are in season. A chart is herewith attached indicating months when certain varieties should pass the maturity test. When buying fruit, the variety of same should be obtained from the seller who should know what kind of fruit he is handling.

Avocados when properly picked are cut from the tree with a very short stem the same as oranges, and it is quite safe to conclude that avocados without stems are either windfalls or have been pulled from the trees. The same is also true if the stems are long and do not show a clean cut.

In addition to being mature, avocados shall be virtually uniform in quality, virtually free from serious defects caused by insects and fungus pests, rots, bruises, frost injury, sunburn or other means; and if packed virtually uniform in size. "Virtually free" from serious defects means that the total of such defects shall not exceed 10 per cent in any one package and not more than 5 per cent of any one defect. All containers of avocados when packed shall bear upon them in plain sight and in plain letters on the outside thereof, the following:

Name of the place where the same were produced, with the post office address thereof or the name and post office address of the person, firm, company or corporation, or organization who shall have first packed or authorized the packing of same, or the name under which such packer shall be engaged in business, together with the post office address of such packer; name of variety, if known, and when not known the words "unknown variety"; and the net weight; and provided further, that no container shall have less than the minimum stamped thereon.

Fruit must not be deceptively packed. "Deceptive pack" shall mean any package of fruit which has in the outer layer or in the exposed surface, fruits which are so superior in quality, size or condition to those in the interior of the package or the unexposed portion as to misrepresent the entire contents.

No container shall bear grade or other designations that are in any way false or misleading.

Avocados which are to be used for by-product purposes are not subject to the above requirements, but an inspector may require such proof as he may deem necessary that the fruit is to be so used.

Violation of the standardization law constitutes a misdemeanor.

You are held strictly responsible for the condition of the fruit on your stand. This office is anxious to assist you in every way possible to secure avocados that meet the standards prescribed by the law. You can co-operate with the inspector by always getting the name and address of the party from which you buy any fruits, nuts or vegetables as well as the license number of their machine. It is recommended where possible that purchases be made direct from growers or established dealers. Parties attempting to sell you avocados, but declining to give their name and address may be trying to get rid of stolen material. Such individuals should be reported to this office. Call 3099 and then ask for the Horticultural Commissioner's office.

PROBLEMS OF THE SOIL

Q. I have an avocado tree 8 to 10 years old. Each year it is full of blossoms, but its small fruit never matures. Is it time to cut it back and grow new wood and then bud in the wood for a better variety, or what would you suggest?—J. A.

A. Popenoe, in his Manual of Tropical and Subtropical Fruits has the following to say about top-working avocados:

"Several methods of top-working are employed, the most satisfactory one being shield budding. When trees are to be top-worked by this means, they should be cut back in . . . February or March . . . removing three-fourths of the main limbs a foot or two from their union with the trunk, the remainder being left to keep the tree in vigorous condition. The limbs should be cut off with a sharp saw, to avoid splitting or tearing on the lower side. The stubs should be covered with a good coating of grafting wax."

"When growth has commenced in early spring, numerous sprouts will appear around the upper ends of the stubs. Only three or four of the strongest should be allowed to remain on each stub and when there have reached the diameter of one's little finger they may be budded in the same manner as seedlings, with a large bud, preferably from growth which is not mature. The exceedingly vigorous growth of the sprouts makes success much more certain than in budding seedlings in the nursery. Because of the rapid growth, it is necessary to loosen the wraps frequently to keep them from binding. They should not be removed until before the buds have developed to a length of 8 or 10 inches. The sprouts rising from the upper side of the stub form stronger unions with the latter than do those from the lower side."

Q. Two peach trees have San Jose scale that may kill them? Several grape vines are starting to leaf out. As they have not been pruned, is it too late to do it now or will the vines bleed?—S.P.R.

A. San Jose scale can be killed by the liberal use of lime-sulphur solution. Use it strong, 1 part to 9 parts of water. Spraying can be delayed until the buds begin to break a little later on, and it will then serve the double purpose of controlling San Jose scale and peach curl leaf. The latter disease cannot be controlled until the buds break for the reason that the fungus spores winter over under the bud scales and cannot be touched by a spray until the scales open up.

It is better to prune grapes now, even though the buds have started, than not to prune at all. The vines may possibly bleed to some extent and accordingly be weakened, but this early in the season and in view of the present cold weather, the buds can hardly have started enough to make any particularly difference. In any event it is probably the buds on the ends of the canes that have started, not the buds at the base. It is said that late pruning delays the starting of the base buds, and to some degree delays blossoming and fruiting.

Q. I have had considerable difficulty in dissolving corrosive sublimate to use in dipping potatoes for scab. How should it be done? In dipping 20 or 25 sacks, will the material be weakened and when should I renew it?—D.W.R.

A. Corrosive sublimate should be dissolved in a little hot water and then mixed with the larger amount. It will materially hasten matters if you add common salt or ammonium chloride to the corrosive sublimate when dissolving the latter. Use the same amount of either of these chlorides as you do corrosive sublimate. If you are using 30 gallons of water and 4 ounces of the sublimate, for instance, then add 4 ounces of salt or ammonium chloride also. The general rule is to add from one-half to an ounce of corrosive sublimate to the dipping solution after every two sacks of potatoes dipped to keep up its strength. Enough water should also be added at the same time to fill the vat to its full level.

Q. Tell me how to plant pecan seeds? I would like to try growing my own seedlings and then bud them. How soon can they be budded after sprouting? Any information concerning this matter will be appreciated.—W. M.

A. Pecan seed may be planted either in the fall or spring, using nuts of last season's crop. If the nuts are to be held for spring planting they should be kept in a cool place or in moist sand or similar material from the time of harvest, as they must not be allowed to dry out. Light, deep, well drained soil is preferable for the seed bed. The nuts are planted from 2 to 3 inches deep, from 8 to 12 inches apart in the rows and the rows from 4 to 6 feet apart. A top dressing of leaf mold or well rotted straw material will help keep the beds moist. If only a few seedlings are to be grown the roots can be close together.

The growth above ground will not be more than 6 to 12 inches the first season, as most of the energy of the plant at this time will be spent in developing the tap root, which is said to be from 3 to 5 times the length of the top. If the seeds are planted in the early spring, the seedlings should be ready to bud the second season, or from 15 to 18 months from planting. If they are to be grafted, this will be done towards the end of the second dormant season following planting. In some exceptional cases seedlings may make sufficient growth the first season to be grafted the following winter. In all cases the bud or graft should not be lower on the seedling than 10 inches above the ground, according to the best authorities.

Drainage Chief Problem Facing Land Reclaimer

While there are areas of alkali soils in California where reclamation apparently is impossible, much of such land can be reclaimed economically.

In making this statement, Prof. W. P. Kelley of the college of agriculture, University of California, pointed out that expense often is a limiting factor.

"With the advantage of a better understanding of the principles, we are now in a position to deal with the practical problem of reclamation much more intelligently," says Prof. Kelley.

"There are five points that need to be considered before launching upon any extensive scheme of alkali reclamation. First, as to the drainage. The permanent success of any method of reclamation rests upon adequate drainage. Second, as to the amounts and the nature of the soluble salts. If sodium salts largely predominate special treatment in addition to leaching may be required, but if calcium salts are also present in considerable amount, it is highly probable that drainage and leaching will suffice. Third, as to the replaceable bases. The amount of sodium carbonate will largely determine the amount of gypsum or sulphur that will be required. Fourth, as to the content of calcium carbonate. Usually alkali soils contain more or less calcium carbonate. In some cases, however, the supply is quite limited. If calcium carbonate is absent and the soil at the same time contains considerable replaceable sodium, it is likely that lining will be necessary if sulphur is to be the most effective. Fifth, as to the composition of the irrigation water.

"With reasonably complete knowledge concerning these five points, all of which can be determined in advance, it is easily possible to prophesy not only as to the necessary steps to be taken but also as to whether reclamation is feasible at all. Unfortunately there are areas where at present we know of no feasible method of practical reclamation. However, so far as our studies have gone, it seems that very much of the alkali soils of California, where adequate irrigation supplies are available, can be reclaimed economically but the expense in some cases will not be small. Nevertheless the reclamation is feasible because of the high value of the land."

Master Farmers Show Leadership In Other Fields

DES MOINES, Ia., Feb. 2.—Fourteen "master farmers," chosen as leaders in their field out of some 80 promising candidates in Iowa, provide proof that book-keeping at last has taken rank with beekeeping, the pen with the plowshare, the school with the silo.

They were chosen on the basis of their success in raising crops and livestock, in their farm management, their financial abilities, their education and their interest in their community activities.

The judges of Iowa's master farmer competition were Dr. C. L. Holmes, of Iowa State college, and Dr. H. C. Taylor, former head of the bureau of economics of the U. S. department of agriculture, and now on the Northwestern university faculty.

The 14 winners are: George Godfrey of Kosuth county, Earl Watts of Page county, Dan J. Schnitzler of Delaware county, H. S. Martin of Jasper county, Lenus Haglund of Page county, William McArthur of Cerro Gordo county, Fred W. LaDoux of Dickinson county, Lewis Morris of Polk county, William Wendt of Bremer county, Charles D. Kirkpatrick of Keokuk county, P. P. Stewart of Fayette county, George W. Christophel of Bremer county, Fred W. Nelson of Story county and E. F. Morris of Hardin county.

"The master farmer must be a man who thinks clearly, who takes an interest in schools, farm and other organizations, who builds for the future," is the code on which the judges made their choice.

"He must also be a man who provides physical comforts for his home," it goes on, "who has a real heart interest in the young folks of his community as well as in his own children. In short, he must be a well-balanced farmer."

RABBIT SKIN HANDLING TOLD IN U. S. BOOK

American Fur Dressers and Dyers Expert in New Transformation Process

Rabbit fur is used more extensively by the fur trade than any other kind, according to a bulletin recently issued by the United States department of agriculture on "Rabbit Skins for Fur," by D. Monroe Green, associate biologist of the biological survey. With the disappearance of many of the fine-furred bearers from many parts of the United States, the use of rabbit skins is steadily increasing. More than 100,000,000 rabbit skins are now utilized annually in this country, about 98 per cent of which are imported. Of this number, says the bulletin, about 55,000, dressed and dyed, are made into fur garments and into trimmings for women's coats, suits and dresses. The remainder, not suitable for garments, are used as linings for men's and boys' gloves and in the manufacture of felt, used chiefly for making hats.

Aided by modern processes, American fur dressers and dyers have become so expert in changing the colors and appearance of furs that in many instances the pelt of the rabbit, under a variety of trade names, which are listed in the new bulletin, is replacing other skins more costly and attractive, as ermine, seal, beaver and leopard.

Methods of handling rabbit skins, from the time the pelt is removed until it reaches the raw-fur market or is tanned for home use, are described in the bulletin, including methods of killing and skinning, stretching, drying and preserving, sorting and grading, marketing, packing and shipping, and tanning. Copies of the publication (Farmers' Bulletin No. 1519-F) may be obtained free, as long as the supply lasts, upon request to the United States department of agriculture, Washington, D. C.

LITTLE DANGER OF 'T. B.' FROM EGGS IS CLAIM

BY H. E. WAHLBERG

Orange County Farm Advisor
According to an article appearing in a recent newspaper some may get the impression that there is great danger of contracting avian tuberculosis from eating eggs.

As was pointed out in the article, eggs subjected to heat, as in frying or poaching, and even soft boiling, would undoubtedly effectively kill any such organisms, were any such present. The only place where such infections are likely to take place would be where the eggs were eaten raw.

However, of the many post mortems made here in the county, no cases of avian tuberculosis have come to the attention of the writer.

With the rigid manner of culling carried on so extensively by the poultrymen, any seriously affected birds would be removed, thus avoiding serious spread.

There are sections in the east where the infection has gained such a foothold as to necessitate testing, but the majority of cases where the infection is discovered, the entire flock is eliminated. With such drastic action, little spread of the disease has been noted, excepting where other kinds of livestock are kept on the farm. Fowls have been found to be susceptible to that form of tuberculosis attacking cattle and swine.

Since the farmers in California are very much specialized in the kinds of livestock kept, less trouble may be anticipated. Fowls affected to the extent where organisms would likely be discharged in the egg would present an anemic appearance, justifying their removal from the flock as a cull. Naturally then, with the poultrymen culling 365 days out of the year, as most of them do, the infection has small chance of gaining a foothold.

Three Varieties Of Pests Found In One Shipment

Illustrating the need for constant vigilance on the part of federal, state and county horticultural inspectors, is the report of A. P. Messenger, supervising quarantine officer at San Pedro, to the effect that three well-known varieties of foreign insect pests were found in one assortment of fruit belonging to a passenger from Hawaii, detained at the port for inspection.

Each of the three pests had been allowed to get into the United States and propagate untold damage would have resulted, County Horticultural Commissioner A. A. Brock said.

The passenger told inspectors that his shipment consisted only of beans and beads and was not infested with insects, Messenger wrote to Brock.

LEACH LAND IN WINTER TO GET BEST RESULTS

By RAYMOND ELLIS

Assistant Farm Advisor

Farmers who are planning to flood lands to leach out injurious salts should be ready to carry on that operation at this time.

There are various reasons why the winter months are best for this work. First, the water supply is more abundant at that time of year, and with the chance of additional water through the medium of rain, it is readily seen that this one reason is sufficient. Then, also, there is the problem of evaporation. This is considerably less in winter, thus getting a greater efficiency out of the water used, as well as cutting down the amount of any salt which might be deposited on the soil surface through evaporation.

It has been conclusively shown that there is one best way to leach salt out of the soil. This is by bordering and cross-checking the land and then, after filling these basins with water, allowing it to run down through the soil as fast as possible and out through underground drainage lines. It goes without saying that drainage lines must be functioning properly, must be so placed as to distance apart and depth as to properly care for the water, and that a considerable amount of water must be run through the soil if best results are to be obtained. Good results have been obtained on highly alkaline soil in Orange county, with approximately six acre feet of water.

Flushing water across the surface of the soil will not effect a permanent reclamation of undrained lands. Very little salt will be washed off of the surface as the first water going over the soil takes the salt into solution and then goes down into the soil. Salt which is further down in the soil, possibly only a few inches, would not be affected by surface flooding. To prove this point, some water analyses have just recently been made in Orange county. Two farmers were working on reclamation, one flushing his water across the top and the other was leaching the water down through the soil and out through drainage lines. Samples of this water as it was discharged into the main drainage ditch were taken and analyzed. The sample taken where the water was flushed across the top showed only 70 parts per million being washed out while the sample which was leached down through the soil showed 1280 parts per million. The water originally came from the same well.

If the soil is impregnated with black alkali, then the procedure to follow is different from that outlined above. A soil analysis is an essential part of any reclamation program. From this analysis the farmer will secure the information which will govern his work of reclamation.

TOMATO BLIGHT IS CAUSED BY HOPPER

CORVALLIS, Ore., Feb. 2.—The cause of western yellow tomato blight, which has puzzled scientists for 28 years, has been revealed by M. B. McKay and T. P. Dykstra of the Oregon experiment station.

As yet no efficient control for the blight, which ravages squash, bean and other crops as well as tomatoes, has been found.

The disease comes from a virus that resides in curly-topped sugar beets and is carried by a leaf-hopper named "Eutettix tenella," according to the investigators.

A close relation was noticed between the unusually severe attacks of beet curly-top last year and unusual prevalence of western yellow blight of other crops. The investigators found the virus-carrying hoppers and put them to work upon plants under controlled conditions.

The blight appeared on plants visited by a single disease-carrying hopper, proving the identity of the two diseases and also the responsibility of the little leafhopper. The guilty hopper is so elusive that no means of control have as yet been devised. He is only an eight of an inch long and quite slender, of reddish gray color when grown.

GREAT FUTURE IS SEEN FOR AVOCADO FRUIT

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 2.—Avocado growing is one of California's great potential industries, according to Winthrop Bowen, representative of the California Avocado Growers' exchange, which markets more than doubled during the last two years.

Mr. Bowen added, "and California promises to become the leading state in avocado production, Florida being the principal competitor."

Confers on Standards

Mr. Bowen has been in Sacramento conferring with officials of the state department of agriculture relative to the new standardization law, which includes avocados among the 30 fruit and vegetable commodities which it regulates. The provisions of this act require that all avocados shall contain a minimum oil content, which assures the purchaser of an avocado which is wholesome and palatable.

"Los Angeles folks eat more avocados than the people in any other section of the country," says Mr. Bowen, "last year consuming 200,000 pounds—practically half the total output of the California avocado industry." The residents of the bay region, however, are not going to be outdone and are demanding each month increased quantities of this fruit. In traveling about the state I have been astonished to find that there are men who never have sampled this delicious, new salad fruit. Upon asking for avocados in the half shell one waitress asked me to talk English, as she did not understand Mexican.

"For a number of years avocados were served principally in the most exclusive clubs, fine hotels and restaurants and Pullman dining cars. Today increased pro-

Short Courses In Dairying At Davis Announced

Announcement of five short courses covering phases of the dairy industry have been received at the farm advisor's office. They are to be held at the university farm, Davis, from February 7 to February 17. Courses offered are market milk, butter making, ice cream making, cheese making, bacteriology.

The courses are open to those who have had some experience in dairy work, either privately or commercially. The only charge is a registration fee of one dollar. Room and board may be obtained on the campus, which will range from $2 to $2.50 per day.

It is understood some of the local creamery men are expected to attend. Others wishing further information relative to the courses may obtain same by applying at the farm advisor's office.

duction and modern co-operative marketing have taken avocados from the novelty class and placed them on the high class fruit stands within reach of discriminating housewives in every large city.

Receipts Available

"The elusive flavor and creamy richness of this fruit, as well as its healthful properties, have caused the avocado to retain its title, 'The Aristocrat of Salad Fruits.' To aid the housewife in preparing these new dishes the California Avocado Growers' exchange, 1405 East Eighth street, Los Angeles, has published a set of attractive receipt cards which are distributed free upon request.

"In countries such as Guatemala, where the avocado or 'Ahuacate' is a native tree," Mr. Bowen continued, "this fruit is a staple article of diet, being generally preferred to the great array of other delectable tropical fruits."

WINDBREAKS TO BE INSPECTED ON FEB. 8 TOUR

Control of Cypress Bark Beetle to Be Considered By State Forester

Since the planting of miles of new windbreaks in Orange county during the last four years, many questions have come up concerning the handling of windbreaks, especially young plantings.

Should rapid growing trees be headed back? At what age should root pruning begin? Should windbreaks be thinned out to promote growth?

These are some of the questions confronting the grower at the present time.

Another matter of concern is the control of the Cypress bark beetle, which is responsible for many cypress trees dying in Orange county windbreaks. Directions for proper windbreak management of young and old plantings will be presented at a special windbreak tour to be conducted by the agricultural extension next Tuesday, February 8, 1:30 p. m.

The tour will start at the Villa Park Orchards association packing house on the above hour. Several typical plantings will be visited, according to announcement by Farm Advisor H. E. Wahlberg, who will be in charge of the tour.

State Extension Forester Woodbridge Metcalf will be one of the speakers. He is one of the best posted windbreak and forest tree men on the Pacific coast.

All growers are invited to participate in the tour.

KOLSTER owners are very enthusiastic. Their countless letters of approval tell results almost magical.

"I got 50 stations the first evening. We had several sets, the Kolster's the finest. No set equals it in tone, volume and distance." Kolster owners speak in superlatives.

"Here in California, I get everything from New York to Japan" says one. "Here in New Jersey, I got 50 stations the first evening, all perfect" says another.

We'd rather let Kolster owners tell the story—better still, let your own ear agree on Kolster superiority. Hear a Kolster. Compare. We will be glad to arrange a Kolster demonstration for you, in your own home if you wish. You'll agree that any Kolster is priced at half the usual asking—considering the performance.

Nice Home For Sale
In view of the fact that I must make some changes in living arrangements, I will sell my fine home at a great sacrifice.

See Owner at 413 N. Main.

Five Reasons Why You Should Buy This Home
1-It is well built. Best material and workmanship. Will always look as it looks now, which is saying a lot.
2-It is strictly modern, of course. 3-It is in a quiet, desirable neighborhood. 4-It is only eight short-way blocks from the courthouse, in last of new blocks, in the Northwest Santa Ana where you find fastest growing values in the county. Restriction.
5-You couldn't duplicate this house and this location anywhere in Santa Ana for $2500. But you can buy this property for $2500.

SPORTS OF ALL SORTS

Following his victory over Ben Johnson, after a bitter feud of seven years with the former American league president, Commissioner Landis is more of a czar over baseball now than he ever was. He was forced to crack the whip over Johnson three times and the last time it sent his rival tottering and badly beaten out of baseball. There is nothing remaining now for the commissioner but to serve out his contract if he desires to do so.

There have been reports that the commissioner is in poor health and that he was retaining his post only because he was too much of a fighter to give an intimation that he might have retired under Johnson's fire.

His friends, however, believe that his health has not been of the best in the last two years but they feel that the petty bickerings of Johnson added to the labor of his routine office duties were responsible for it and that the last and final vote of implicit confidence in his administration will be the needed tonic.

Diplomacy of Ruppert

The manner in which the American league club owners supported the commissioner and relieved Johnson of his duties as president of their league was a tribute to the diplomacy and shrewd mind of Col. Jack Ruppert, owner of the New York Yankees.

The American league magnates found themselves in a tight place when Johnson tossed a challenge at Landis which could not have been met by any move other than the decapitation of either Johnson or Landis.

The National league wouldn't stand for any move indicating a lack of confidence in the commissioner and a part of the public would resent the lack of sentiment that would be indicated in the discharge of Johnson.

Johnson, giving him credit for being the fighter that he always has been, would not resign and placed his employers in a position where very few thought they would be able to pull out gracefully.

There is no doubt that Johnson in recent years has made many mistakes but a man of his daring type has to make many mistakes.

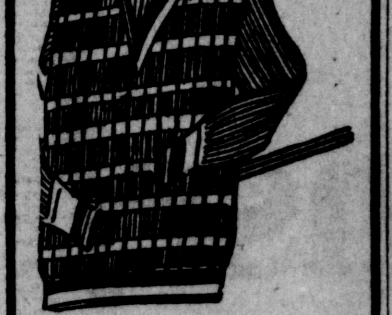

His real big mistakes, however, were made only in recent years, and they might be attributed to age that may have impaired his judgment.

Made American League Johnson made the American league and he did more for the organization of major league baseball than any other man. But with his success in putting over the American league and in lording over the two leagues for years came an inordinate vanity that never could have been reconciled to the authority of a superior position.

It is apparent that Johnson, living in the days of his triumphs, felt that there was no one before whom he need kneel or bow and if he hadn't lost the support of Charles Comiskey, a bosom friend for years and if Colonel Ruppert hadn't come into baseball he might have licked Landis.

If Johnson had not attempted to block the transfer of Carl Mays to the New York Yankees, he

FULLERTON AND H.B. OUTFITS TRIM MIDGETS

Hitherto Unconquered Poly 110-Pounders Halted by Orange Co. Aggregation

No longer can the Santa Ana high school Class C (110-pound) five boast a perfect string of victories against other prep teams of the midget division.

Twice yesterday in the absence of their coach, Lynn Crawford, they were tripped up unexpectedly by teams that were rated as of no particular strength, at least not of championship favor in such a powerful circuit as the Coast Preparatory league.

In the afternoon, the Fullerton midgets defeated the locals, 19 to 14, at Fullerton and in the evening, in Andrew's gymnasium, the Huntington Beach "C" team won a 10 to 9 victory over the Santa Anans.

Against Huntington Beach, the Polyites played a listless and spiritless game. Captain Neil Hall didn't score a single point although he is usually high point player. The Santa Ana second team played more than half of the game, but even when the first team went in, the squad lacked impressiveness.

Overconfidence may have been responsible for the double defeat but impartial judges were of the opinion that the Poly "Little Men" were clearly and decisively outplayed by Fullerton and outthought by a scrappy little Huntington Beach quintette.

When Coach Crawford returns to his team today he will impress on his charges that they have still another dangerous antagonist to meet Friday in Glendale, which for years has been famous for the power of its Class B and Class C basketball teams. Glendale always has pressed Santa Ana in years past and the Junior Dynamiters are confident they can ruin the Poly winning spurt this year just as Fullerton and Huntington Beach did.

The lineups:
Santa Ana (9) (10) Huntington Beach (4) (5) (6) (7) (8) (9) (10) (11) (12) (13) (14) (15) (16) (17) (18) (19) (20) (21) (22) (23) (24) (25) (26) (27) (28) (29) (30) (31) (32) (33) (34) (35) (36) (37) MRS. YOUNG'S FIRST DAY IN L. A. THRILLER

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 2.—Mrs. Jean Young, who came all the way from Toronto, Canada, to aid her son George in safeguarding his $25,000 Catalina channel prize and in using the fame derived from his swim to the best financial advantage, was on the verge of a nervous breakdown here today.

Mrs. Young's condition followed her first day's experience with lawyers, managers, would-be managers, managers' wives, friends and what-nots that have attached themselves to George since his sensational rise in the public eye.

At a downtown hotel, Mrs. Young, supported by her sister-in-law, Miss Bella Young, Johnny Walker, who taught George how to swim, and William Sheldon, a Hollywood attorney, denied herself to all visitors.

Aftermath of Fame

Mrs. Young's experience with the aftermath of sudden fame started shortly after her crossing the California line yesterday afternoon on a west bound train. Before the day had closed she had been the center of an alleged kidnapping, a reputed attempt at Shanghaiing and almost a free-for-all at fictionists.

In Barstow Mrs. Young received a telegram from her son urging her to transfer from one train to another and to continue to San Francisco to meet him there.

P. P. Watkins, a local attorney now acting for Young, boarded the train there and attempted to persuade Mrs. Young to entrain for San Francisco. Heated words are said to have followed when on the advice of Walker, Mrs. Young decided to continue to Los Angeles.

Tug-of-War Follows

Bill Hastings, former pal of George, with Townsend Paul, Hastings' manager, prevailed on Mrs. Young to accompany them to one hotel here in preference to the hotel counseled by two of Young's managers' wives. The latter argument was tempered with a tug-of-war in which Mrs. Young played the centerpiece.

Later Mrs. Young accompanied Hastings and Paul to the office of Sheldon where she talked with her son over the telephone. George is said to have asked his mother to come to San Francisco and she declined on the ground that she was too ill.

Following a conference with Sheldon, Mrs. Young said that she was dissatisfied with the present arrangement of her son's welfare.

Mrs. Young was not sure whether or not she would go to meet her son in the northern city.

Cobb Decision Factor In Player Trade

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—If Ty Cobb decides to accept the terms of the St. Louis Browns, the trade pending between the Browns and the New York Yankees probably will be completed, in the opinion of Miller Huggins, manager of the Yankees.

"If Cobb goes with the Browns I think they will turn over the outfielder that I want," Huggins said.

WINTER GOLF SPOILED GAME SAYS COLLETT

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—Glenns Collett, America's most famous woman golfer, attributes her failure to win the 1926 championship to too much golf.

"I have decided that continuous golf over a period of 12 months is entirely too much for the woman player. I learned too late that I had gone stale when the big events came along.

"In order to be at my best next summer I have decided to abandon my winter trip to Florida, which for many years has been an annual custom.

"I intend to make my home in New York during the remainder of the winter, with the exception of playing in the Nassau tournament, which I had entered prior to my decision not to play winter golf."

Promoters in Florida and at Pinehurst, N. C., have so far been unable to make Miss Collett reconsider her decision.

HOPPE, COCHRAN MATCHED BOSTON, Feb. 2.—Willie Hoppe, 18.2 ballline, billiard champion, will defend his title in a 1500 point match with Welker Cochran, of California, here on February 10, 11 and 12.

Young Jake Schaefer, world's 18.1 ballline champion, has cut short his visit to Europe and returned home. Jake declares that the European stars were afraid to meet him, so there was nothing for him to do but to return to America, where he never has experienced any difficulty in getting matches.

HORNSBY MAY SUE CARDINALS FOR DIVIDENDS

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Feb. 2.—Rogers Hornsby, deposed manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, may sue the club for back dividends on his stock, William Fahey, Hornsby's attorney, said today.

Fahey said he was not rushing into the suit and would again discuss the situation with Sam Breadon, Cardinal president, before taking any definite action.

The threat of legal action to force payment of back dividends, followed yesterday's board of directors' meeting at which Hornsby protested declaration of only a 10 per cent dividend when $150,000 was set aside for a sinking fund.

"I believe the money set aside for a sinking fund should be paid off in dividends," Fahey said.

Hornsby's unique position as part owner of one baseball team and member of another remained unchanged today. League officials have ordered that his Cardinal stock be sold before he plays with the New York Giants, who have contracted for his services.

HORNSBY TRANSFER NOT INVALIDATED YET

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—John Heydler, president of the National league, told the United Press today that the fact that Rogers Hornsby was a director and stockholder in the St. Louis Cardinals had not invalidated his transfer to the New York Giants.

"There is nothing to become alarmed over," he added. "Hornsby will still have 70 days in which to get rid of his stock."

FERNANDEZ TO FEED TIERNAN BALL TEAM

Bob Fernandez, manager of the Tiernan Typewriter company, will be host at a dinner tomorrow night to members of the Tiernan baseball team and to players who were on the Harbor league All-Star aggregation, according to George Lackaye, who managed the Tiernan crew on the field. The repeat will be held at the Los Serranos Country club, the entourage leaving the Tiernan office at 5:30 o'clock.

Guests will include Bill Middlebrook, Luther Babcock, Roy Le Bard, "Bossy" Boisseranc, Eris Jamison, Darwin Scott, Liston Hill, Charley Bustillos, Ed Daley, Le-vitt Daley, Hatfield, Wayne Nelson, Sholder, George Lackaye, Spencer, Hillard Tyrrell and Fred Hinrichs.

HANDSHAKE TRIS LIKED BEST

This hearty handshake was but one of a great many Tris Speaker received when he returned to Cleveland from Chicago, where Judge Landis absolved him of baseball "scandal" charges. But it was the one that drew Speaker's broadest smile. It came from Mrs. Tris, you see.

would not have lost the support of Colonel Ruppert and if he had not lost the vote of Comiskey and Harry Frazee he might have licked the New York Yankees in that test of power.

Ruppert, as the dominating owner in the league, had a major and directing part in the events that led up to the downfall of Johnson but it was Ruppert who came to the rescue and furnished the sweetening for the cup that ended Johnson's career.

The owner of the Yankees knew that it would not be a popular move to fire the man who had brought the American league into life and who had spent the best years of his life in getting the league established. He knew also that the American league couldn't back Johnson against the commissioner.

So he suggested that Johnson was in such poor health—and he is—that he was not fitted to direct the affairs of the league. His suggestion to his fellow magnates that the president be relieved of his duties until such a time as his physical condition would qualify him for the office was accepted by the league and the commissioner said the action suited him.

Johnson was thereby pensioned. He will continue to draw a salary of $40,000 a year for a period that may be his natural life and he got a leave of absence without the stain of a discharge.

There are no reasons to support the rumor heard since then that Landis will step out of his job soon and that Johnson's physical condition will be found to be so improved that he will be restored to his job.

So far as the records show the first professional baseball player was Al J. Reach of Philadelphia. Reach had displayed such remarkable ability with the Brooklyn club that the Athletics offered him a salary to come to Philadelphia and play.

If a bill now before the Ohio legislature is enacted into law, all professional sports in that state will become subject to regulation by a commission of five members appointed by the governor.

CRITICS THINK KRUG'S ANGELS BEST IN RACE

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 2.—Marty Krug, manager of the Los Angeles club of the Coast league, thinks the Angels are about sure to cop the 1927 pennant, and his opinion seems well justified, when one considers he will have virtually the same team in the field as that which walked away with the flag last year.

Admitting the Oakland club looms this season and conceding several dark horse club possibilities, Krug points out he's losing two good players in Arnold Stutz and Elmer Jacobs.

Dick Cox, who "cavorted" in Portland's outfield in such fashion as to be grabbed by the Brooklyn Dodgers has drawn Stutz's assignment. Whills Cox comes as a hand-me-down from the majors there is a deal of fielding and hitting ability left in him.

Piercy Should Help While Jacobs was being drafted by the Chicago White Sox, Krug had Bill Piercy in mind to fill Jacob's shoes. And Bill will be on deck at the training camp, turned over to the Angels by the Chicago Cubs. Piercy is no stranger to the Coast league. He's been up and down from coast to majors several times.

Harry Hannah and Gus Sandberg will be back this season to handle the bulk of the catching with young Jimmy Reed also available.

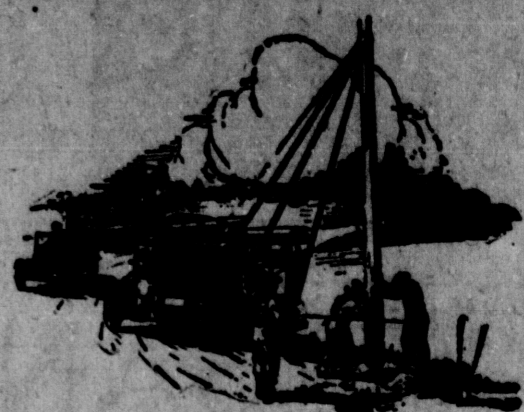

Besides his acquisition of Piercy, Krug will have "Doc" Wright, who hung up 13 wins all in a row last year; "Oil" Hamilton, the league's leading southpaw in 1926; "Whitey" Glazner, "Rube" Yarrison and a couple of hurlers yet to be turned over to the Angels by Brooklyn for Stutz.

Grug Keeps Elliott There's a possibility of Grug landing big Jib Elliott, who was a pitching sensation for Seattle last season.

Ray Jacobs will be back to take care of first base, but "Senator" Tolson, a slugger of note, may be turned over to the Angels by the Cubs this spring. Tolson was an understudy of the able Charlie Grimm at Chicago. If Tolson comes to the Angels Jacobs will probably be shifted to second, thus giving Ed Hemmington the utility job, for which Krug originally bought him.

Johnny Mitchell, rated as one of the smartest shortstops in the league, is sure to prove an asset to the Angel pennant aspirants.

Frank Brazil, a .350 clouter will be the third sacker. (This is the third of a series of articles dealing individually with the prospects of Pacific Coast league baseball clubs for the coming season.—Sport Editor's note.)

Efficiency

DOWN the road it travels, one of the most efficient things on wheels. Coils of wire are stored inside. Tools are in the snug lockers. Pike poles and shovels are in their racks. A big winch is bolted to its frame and there are pipes of steel from which to form a sturdy derrick.

Sometimes it draws a trailer loaded with long, straight poles. Sometimes it bears a heavy reel of cable. Often its load is men.

The telephone truck gets many a glance as it passes. For whether on the peace-time job of construction and maintenance or bound to where snow and sleet have made for it a battle ground, it means power, speed, efficiency, economy and human loyalty, united in the task of making telephone service better, broader, more dependable.

NEWS FROM ORANGE COUNTY TOWNS

TRAFFIC CASES HEAD ARRESTS BY ORANGE COPS

ORANGE, Feb. 2.—Traffic cases again topped arrests made by police during January, the report of City Marshal B. F. Richards, submitted yesterday to the board of trustees, revealed. Thirty-six speeders were tagged. Nine other persons received traffic slips for various offenses and eight offenders of law in other cases were arrested by the officers, the report indicated.

The two arrests for attempted robbery were mentioned by Chief Richards as being the outstanding cases during the month. Three arrests were made for intoxication, two for petit larceny and one on a misdemeanor charge. Nine dogs were licensed during the month, according to a report made of that department.

Miss Mabel A. Reeves reported the collection of $2602.67 in water rates during January.

Thirty-seven inspections with a total collection of $34.68 was reported by Will N. Parsons, city inspector.

Oil and gravel was applied to the roadbed of South Pixley street and various intersections repaired in January, according to the report of C. C. Bonebrake, city engineer.

The report of J. W. Richardson, city water superintendent, revealed the fact that there are 20,130 gallons of water being pumped into the mains more than is pumped from the reservoir. The water level in the wells remains at the same level as last month, 162 feet. Gas used in the city measured 1,310,500 cubic feet and electricity measured 3180 K. W. Installation of 300 feet of eight-inch cast iron pipe on East Almond avenue was made in January, he reported.

During January, the recorder's court collected $389 in fines, of which $253 went to the street fund and $136 to the police fund, according to Recorder G. W. Ingle.

Following the hearing of reports the board adopted the recommendation of Fire Chief A. L. Tomblin that Herbert Sissons be appointed driver on the fire truck. Sissons has been acting as driver since the resignation of D. C. Squires recently.

Consideration was also given the suggestion of Will Martin and Thomas Green, officers of the realty board, that a planning commission be formed. A resolution adopted by the board at a recent meeting was read to the board. The resolution recommended the appointment of the planning body. Prominent among the projects for which such a commission is needed, according to Martin, is the opening of streets west from the business district to North Main street.

Prediction of much real estate activity in the vicinity of Orange should the streets be opened was made by Martin.

Following the application of Adolph Dittmer for permission to establish a loading zone near his drug store, the board went on record as not favoring loading zones.

Upon application of O. W. Sisson, C. C. Bonebrake, city engineer, was ordered to remove a large refuse receptacle from an alley driveway leading off the plaza to the Sisson garage property.

An application of several residents of North Tustin boulevard headed by R. E. Johnson for city water was referred to the water committee and superintendent for investigation.

An auctioneer's license at $100 per year was granted P. A. Whittles, formerly of Long Beach, who has purchased a lease at 142 North Orange street.

T. E. Gruwell was granted a permit to sell fruit from a stand on North Main street.

Injured Orange Cop Back on Job

ORANGE, Feb. 2.—Horace Inge, motor officer, who was injured in a traffic crash nearly two months ago, resumed his duties yesterday. By agreement of the trustees yesterday, Inge received full pay during the time he was off in December. For the month of January, Inge received the difference between the compensation allowed him by the state, which is 65 per cent of 96 per cent of his salary, and his regular wage.

Carl Krueger, substitute motor officer, refuses to private life, after having gained the commendation of B. F. Richards, city marshal, for his ability.

The appointment of Fred C. Swayze to the police department for afternoon and evening work, made by Chief Richards since the last meeting of the board, when it was voted to allow the chief to make an additional appointment, was ratified by the board at the meeting yesterday.

DECREASE IN OIL OUTPUT AT H. B. INDICATED

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Feb. 2.—The production of the field in the west end of the city of Huntington Beach continues to show a steady decline. A survey of pipeline runs for the past several days indicates that the city field is not producing more than about 54,000 barrels a day against about 56,000 barrels a day a week ago. This decrease is recorded despite the completion of four new wells during the period of the survey, one or two of them making an initial production of as high as 1000 barrels a day.

Statisticians figure that unless the area east of Seventeenth street is more productive than most operators think it will be, the field will be down to 40,000 barrels by early summer.

The Richfield Oil company's Stott No. 1 well, which has been completed in the townlot field at Huntington Beach a week ago, is holding up to its original output in a way that contrasts favorably with the decline of other wells in that field. The Stott No. 1 came in at about 621 barrels per day, but has averaged considerably above this figure since that time.

ORANGE SLIGHTED BY AUTO CLUB IN ITS ADVERTISING, COMMERCE BODY ASSERTS

ORANGE, Feb. 2.—Alleging that the Automobile Club of Southern California has persistently refused to recognize Orange in its printed matter and advertising literature, the directors of the Orange Commerce Chamber of Commerce have asked the chamber members to withhold dues and patronage from the club until satisfactory adjustment of the matter has been made.

According to the chamber officials, the club has published advertisements and omitted the name of Orange. It was asserted in the chamber meeting that in a recent list of auto club offices, the Orange office was omitted.

Replying to the charges made by the chamber, club officials maintain that the advertisement of a through route from Los Angeles to San Diego, published in the Saturday Evening Post several years ago, did not include Orange because of oversight on the part of the printer. The list of offices printed recently did not include Orange because there is no office in Orange, it was pointed out. The local representative of the Auto club is furnished desk space to maintain an information bureau, according to club officials.

Service rendered by R. C. Brummer and A. P. M. Brown, auto club representatives in Orange since the establishment of the information bureau several years ago, has always been of the best, chamber directors say. The charges made by the chamber were not aimed at them, it was said, but at the officials of the club, whose offices are in Los Angeles.

It was pointed out by various officials of the club that in the monthly magazine, Touring Topics, the city of Orange is given equal publicity with other cities regarding service establishments.

Possibility that the club would take further steps to indicate its desire to work with the business and residential interests of Orange, was stated by the club authorities. What action would be taken was not revealed.

NECESSITY FOR IDEALS TOLD IN ANAHEIM TALK

ANAHEIM, Feb. 2.—"No city can ever hope to amount to anything worth while unless it has ideals and some concrete working plan to consummate them," declared Dr. Walter L. Bigham in an address on "Civic Ideals" at the Forum dinner of the Anaheim Chamber of Commerce, which attracted 135 prominent citizens to the Elks clubhouse.

Vocal and instrumental selections, community singing, under the leadership of Warren L. Ashleigh, and a number of short addresses by local speakers and another on the water situation by W. W. Hoy, Santa Ana engineer and water expert, were features of the affair. H. E. W. Barnes, president of the chamber, presided.

Anaheim is not essentially a manufacturing city though the time is not far distant when it will be the home of many industries, Dr. Bigham told his audience.

"Our present hope is to make Anaheim a distinctive residential community which will attract the thousands of workers who are annually moving to Los Angeles attracted by the influx of industrial establishments," the speaker said.

Dr. Bigham urged Anaheim to speedily put through its share of the Manchester boulevard in order to shorten the distance to the Southern California metropolis as an invitation to the workers of that city to make Anaheim their future home. He also stressed the necessity of improving local streets and roads in order to make it easier and more attractive for the people of adjacent trade territory to do their buying here.

A WHOLE CHURCH AT STUDY

The institution of a series of church training evenings by the First Methodist church, of Santa Ana, offers food for comment. The purpose is to bring in to a church school, at mid-week meetings, all the members of the church. Class leaders have been elected to deal with specific subjects, so that everybody is sure to find a class taking up a line of study of special interest to that person. A variety of subjects is to be presented, with trained leaders in charge.

The plan of the church training organization seems to be a combination of Sunday school, which was originally designed largely for younger folk, and prayer meeting with the night school well known in modern school life.

The plan has been worked out with the desire of interesting the whole church. One of the slogans is "The Whole Church in Christian Fellowship" and another is "It's the Whole Church at Study."

Of course, the religious phase is to be emphasized, as it rightfully should be in order to get the best results from the project. The study, if one may judge from the subjects offered in the various classes, is to bring about a better understanding of practical church work. The series ought to bring about excellent results, not only for the church itself, but for the community at large.

PAYING FOR CAMP SERVICE

Methods of conducting tourist camps come in for discussion at this time of year. A great many cities and towns in all parts of the country now have such camps. Pennsylvania lists eight camps of this sort located in the open country. They vary in type from an open space among trees to elaborately equipped sites with running water, lights, stoves and other conveniences.

One question in regard to camps which is still unsettled is the advisability of maintaining them free or of charging a nominal fee for their use. Another important question involves the length of time any tourists may remain.

There seems to be a growing opinion that it is wise to charge a little for camp service. It seems to be human nature to have more respect for a thing that is paid for. There are fewer abuses of camp privileges when even as little as 50 cents is paid for a night's stop-over.

The director of Denver's publicity bureau says that after interviewing hundreds of tourists he is convinced that the fee plan is preferred by them. Denver's camp last season took in about $16,000 at 50 cents a tourist, and used the money in improving the camp.

A time limit on the camper is necessary in many places to eliminate not the bona fide tourist but the loafers who are simply trying to escape their just share of the cost of living by hanging out in free camps, only moving on when forced to by local authorities.

Touring has undoubtedly come to stay, and camping out along the way is steadily gaining in popularity. It is therefore only a matter of time and experience until the details of public camp management are successfully worked out.

RADIO LEGISLATION

Several million radio fans and all branches of the big radio industry are pleased at the prospect of legislation for radio control before the adjournment of a rather fruitless session of Congress. The House and Senate have agreed at last on a bill, and it is expected to go through.

It is necessarily a compromise measure. It may not altogether satisfy the radio industry and public, because its divides federal radio authority between the Department of Commerce and an independent radio commission. The commission is to handle the situation for one year, with jurisdiction over the granting, renewal and revocation of broadcasting licenses, with Secretary Hoover handling the routine administration. After that it will step aside and let the Department of Commerce do all the work, with the commission still existing as a court of appeal.

Many would have preferred the placing of immediate and final authority in Secretary Hoover's hands, where it was lodged satisfactorily before, until a court decision made a new law necessary. The proposed arrangement looks a bit complicated and bureaucratic. But the Senate seems determined to give as little power as possible to Hoover's department; and almost any legislation on the subject would be preferable to the present lawlessness in the broadcasting field.

The term of the commission is six years. By the end of that time everybody will know a good deal more about broadcasting, and if the arrangement proves unsatisfactory it can then be changed.

SAFETY THROUGH COURTESY

Courtesy is the best policy in driving. Cleveland has just observed a motor courtesy week, during which prizes were offered for conspicuously courteous acts on the part of automobile drivers. The result is worth thinking about.

During the week of courtesy there were only 18 motor accidents of any sort, but three of which were serious and none fatal. During the corresponding week in 1926 that city suffered 74 accidents, three of them fatal.

One can't help considering what wonders of safety would be achieved if the same effort toward courtesy were practised on a national scale next summer during the height of the touring season—safety from accidents and safety from the costly ones that result from carelessness as well as property.

READING SLEUTH

Writing his "Diary of Our Own Day," told of his search for the book he thought came from the past.
But read all of Stevenson's poems in the effort to find it, and that was highly pleasurable, and I found again that a great part of the information I have was acquired by looking up something and finding something else on the way; and much of my reading done that way, too."

That is one of the rewards for looking up unfamiliar words in the dictionary, tracing allusions to their source, verifying a bit of history or geography or science run across in casual reading. Sometimes the hasty reader refuses to look up the thing he doesn't know because he imagines it takes too much time or may distract him from the book in hand. Thereby he loses a lot of real pleasure and shuts the door on new knowledge of interest and value.

AID THE PEPPER INDUSTRY

It is regretted that there is no legal way by which the county can appropriate money to aid in conquering the pepper weevil, which has done many tens of thousands of dollars damage to the pepper industry of this county. Federal interest already has been enlisted and studies that may lead to control now are in progress. State aid is being sought through a measure now before the state legislature.

This county, more than any other in the country, is interested in the maintenance of the pepper industry. In good years, it brings in fair returns not only to the landowners and tenants, but is the mainstay of a canning industry that gives employment to a goodly force.

Uniform Traffic Ordinance

In considering the adoption of the uniform traffic ordinance recommended for cities of Southern California, the mayor and council of Riverside should give careful attention to local conditions; and it is assumed that they will do so. It is moreover true that an ordinance might be all right for a big city like Los Angeles but would be too technical and elaborate for a city like Riverside. The general idea however, is a good one.

If all the cities in Southern California, outside of Los Angeles, could agree on a uniform plan of handling traffic, grief of the automobilist would be greatly lessened. He would not have to find out as he drove from one town to another what traffic provisions he would have to look out for. Boulevard stops, length of time for parking in the business district, regulations concerning speed near schools, "left hand turn" rules, speed limits in the business section and in residence districts, and other matters could well be covered by such an ordinance. The great majority of automobilists want to obey state and local regulation; but they do not like to be arrested in San Bernardino or Pasadena for something that it is perfectly legal to do in Riverside.

The state traffic law is uniform but it aims mainly to regulate the speed; other details of the control of traffic are left to local authorities. For the convenience and safety of all owners of cars, it is highly desirable that those regulations be as nearly uniform as possible.

The Southern California Automobile club has done good work in advocating uniform traffic regulations and in suggesting provisions of an ordinance that could be utilized generally by the cities in this part of the state. Unless there are local reasons that make some provisions of the plan unsuitable for Riverside, this city will promote safer and more comfortable auto travel by adopting it.

Illiteracy in California

Oakland Tribune
In its current number the Sierra Educational News notes with considerable satisfaction, as well it may, that during 1926 California reached the highest place of all the states in the union in the support of public libraries, the amount spent being $1.08 per capita.

In its process of "stock-taking," however, the Journal deplors the fact that in the matter of illiteracy California, which leads the nation also, in support of education, stands twenty-second in rank. During the period 1910 to 1920, the editorial points out, we made practically no progress in the elimination of illiteracy. "Or to put it another way, the influx of population was so great that our percentage of illiteracy was not materially lessened. Today we have in California approximately 92,000 men and women who may be classed as illiterates. This is a decided blot on our much vaunted progress and democracy."

That there should be in this state 92,000 men and women who can neither read nor write is, of course, to be deplored. But as California is not responsible for the lack of education on the part of adult aliens, it can not rightfully be called "a decided blot on our much vaunted progress and democracy." And especially true is this seeing that means have been provided in this state for the education of those in need of it.

How About This One?

Fresno Republican
Groceryman F. M. Knight of Fresno submits this baffler for the consideration of Republican readers: A man bought five dollars worth of groceries for which he tendered a five dollar gold watch charm with the understanding that he would redeem it. In a week or two he came in and gave me a twenty dollar bill and I gave him his watch charm and three five dollar bills. So he went out with twenty dollars and left me with twenty dollars. Did I get paid for my groceries?

RUBBER 'REDUCERS' ARE WITHOUT BENEFIT
In the craze for reduction which agitated most of the women of the United States during the past few years, many of them undertook all sorts of exercises, diets and the use of all kinds of apparatus to remove what they considered superfluous weight. Among the most widely advertised articles were corsets and brassieres, made of pure gum rubber, which were supposed to be worn next to the skin. It was perhaps the notion of those who promoted these devices that they would squeeze the flesh into a more solid form, perhaps causing the body to eliminate the superfluous matter from inside.

There is not, of course, the slightest scientific reason to believe that such apparatus could do anything of the kind. The chief effect of wearing rubber garments next to the skin is that they prevent perspiration from evaporating. Since the perspiration is rubbed into the skin, it is likely to produce irritation.

Some persons have severe irritation of the skin from contact with the rubber itself. The rubber garment does not increase the sweat, but simply causes it to remain on the surface. Certainly it does not cleanse the skin, but rather tends to make it accumulate deposits of waste products. The sweat regulates the temperature of the body by evaporation from the surface. It also keeps the skin soft by keeping it moist and well lubricated. Rubber garments prevent evaporation of the sweat, which produces laceration of the skin.

Certainly they cannot in any way aid the lubrication of the skin, since retention of salts and other substances is likely to make it drier and to cover it with crusts.

Learn to Practice Safety

Kansas City Star

The tragic accident at a Texas grade crossing last Saturday brings up once more the problem of safety in the United States. Each individual may have his pet idea as to why the accident occurred or how it could have been avoided. But it did occur; and it was only one of hundreds of traffic accidents that will be recorded in the year ahead.

The toll in motor vehicle accidents in the country now is about 24,000 a year, and grade crossing fatalities range above 2000 annually. How much of this sacrifice of human life is unnecessary? What may be done by the constant use of safety methods to reduce the toll in these and other types of accident?

A report of railroad accidents in Great Britain last year is interesting. Total fatalities of this kind were only eleven for the year. Yet that, the department of commerce states, was an increase over recent years. In 1925 but a single railroad passenger was killed in Great Britain, and the number of passengers carried by trains was 1748 million. In two previous years no passengers were killed. A record of that kind in the United States hardly is to be expected, in view of the extended railroad mileage and other conditions here. Yet much has been done to make railroad travel safe in this country, and no doubt much more will be done. In a recent year, out of nearly 1 billion passengers carried by railroads of the United States only 175 were killed. That is equivalent to one out of about every 5 1/2 million. Twenty-five years ago the hazards of railroad travel in America were double or more than double what they are today.

A rapid increase in the number of motor vehicles has contributed to the grade crossing fatalities of this country. These, with some exceptions, have mounted for several years. This phase of the safety problem does not exist in Great Britain. The seriousness of it may be reduced in America as crossings on main highways are eliminated and as motorists learn to use more caution in approaching the crossings that are left. Work toward uniform traffic laws in the states providing, among other things, for the licensing of drivers, may help toward reducing the general traffic accident toll. Education in safety also will prove beneficial. Altogether it is a case of learning, although at tremendous cost.

Worth While Verse

A CRADLE SONG

Sleep, sleep, beauty bright,
Dreaming in the joys of night;
Sleep, sleep; in thy sleep
Little sorrows sit and weep.

Sweet babe, in thy face
Soft desires I can trace,
Secret joys and secret smiles,
Little pretty infant wiles.

As thy softest limbs I feel,
Smiles as of the morning steal
O'er the cheek, and o'er thy breast
Where thy little heart doth rest.

Oh the cunning wiles that creep
In thy little heart asleep!
When thy little heart doth wake,
Then the dreadful light shall break.

Your Income Tax

This is one of a series of articles, based on the revenue act of 1926, written by the U. S. Bureau of Internal Revenue.

No. 18

Salaries paid employees constitute one of the largest items of business expenses. To be allowed such claims must conform closely to the words of the revenue act of 1926, which provides for the deduction of "a reasonable allowance for personal services actually rendered." The test of deductibility is whether the amounts paid are reasonable and whether they are, in fact, purely for personal services. Money paid an officer of a corporation for which no services, or services inadequate to the compensation rendered, is not deductible as "salary." Reasonable compensation is held to be an amount that ordinarily is paid by like enterprises in like circumstances for like services.

For example, an officer of a corporation received in 1926 compensation in excess of the amount ordinarily paid for services such as he rendered, and which bear a relationship to the amount of his stockholdings. The excess would not be treated as salary but as a distribution of profits upon stock, and the amount of such excess would not be considered a deductible item.

Bonuses to employees may be deducted by employers when such payments are made in good faith as additional compensation for services actually rendered, provided that, when added to the stipulated salaries the total does not exceed a "reasonable compensation for services rendered."

INCOME TAX IN A NUTSHELL

WHO? Single persons who had net income of $1,500 or more or gross income of $3,000 or more, and married couples who had net income of $3,500 or more or gross income of $5,000 or more must file returns. WHEN? The filing period ends March 15, 1927.

WHERE? Collector of Internal Revenue for the district in which the person lives or has his principal place of business.

HOW? Instructions on Forms 1040A and 1040; also the law and regulations.

WHAT? One and one-half per cent normal tax on the first $4,000 in excess of the personal exemptions and credits. Three per cent normal tax on the next $4,000. Five per cent normal tax on the balance of net income. Surtax on net income in excess of 10,000.

tion for services rendered." When the amount of a salary of an officer or employee is paid for a limited time to his widow or heirs in recognition of services rendered by the deceased, such payments may be deducted. Salaries paid employees absent in the military, naval, or other service of the Government, but who intend to return, are allowable deductions.

For Better City Development

Kansas City Times

It seems likely that the recent decision of the United States supreme court sustaining the principle of zoning will mark a decisive turn in the development of American cities. Previous to this decision moves to protect property values and to bring increased safety, comfort and convenience to urban residents had been made by several hundred cities of the country. The rapid growth of the population centers in the last decade or so had made such efforts an imperative necessity. But as zoning incorporated, it not a new principle, at least an extension of an old principle with respect to property rights, it had been assailed in a large number of cases. It was held, in effect, that zoning interfered unduly with individual rights in the use of property.

Decisions of the state supreme courts in a substantial majority of cases or in twelve out of a total of sixteen, had been favorable to city zoning ordinances. But the essential issue involved had not reached the United States supreme court until a test case arising from Euclid, O., a suburb of Cleveland, was laid before that body. The main question involved in this case, according to Alfred Bettman of Cincinnati, a member of the Hoover conference on city planning, "was whether it was constitutional to form, by zoning, exclusive residential districts into which industrial lands could not approach."

The court not only answered the question affirmatively but amplified its position by pointing to the legality of many other protective moves aimed at the security and general welfare of people in cities. Not only could districts be zoned against industry, the court said in substance, but against apartments and against other types of structures, whether intended for habitation or business use, that were not in reasonable harmony with individual family dwellings or that might tend to interfere with the proper use of them.

The decision, it has become evident, is far-reaching. It clarifies the whole question of zoning, virtually closes the door to litigation over it, and opens the way to a new era in city development. The decision means, says Mr. Bettman, "that where a city has a zoning ordinance the city authorities are strengthened in the enforcement of their orders, and that cities now without zoning ordinances may proceed more quickly to get them with the knowledge they are invulnerable to attack if properly drawn."

Right and Polite

By SHIRLEY RODMAN WILLIAMS

THE "why" of social codes is hard for children to understand and really it isn't to be wondered at. We teach and beseech them to tell the truth and be honest and then very plainly by our own actions show them that we have two codes—one for public display and one for private life. For instance, we treat a caller with exaggerated courtesy and after he's gone make remarks about his manners, personality and character. The other extreme of our conduct is the child's. If he doesn't like another he simply says "Go home, I don't want to play with you." The difficult thing for him to learn, and for us too, is to be courteous without being deceitful; to be polite without being exaggerated; to encourage and cultivate only those folks we can speak well of—and then school ourselves to say nothing about the rest.

EACH now and then

Miss Phoebe Fern Steps in to call. It's strange to see An it can be She comes at all.
